OXFORD (UPI) — In a precedent-shattering action, the Oxford University student magazine "Isis" yesterday called "the whole business of monarchy ridiculous."

The magazine said Buckingham Palace had sold the British public a "sales image" of a happy middle-class family.

Harder Line Army Forces Argentina To Slap Cuba

BUENOS AIRES (AP)

— President Arturo Frondizi bowed to military pressure Friday night and agreed to reverse the soft stand Argentina took toward Cuba at the Punta del Este conference.

While apparently preparing for a full diplomatic break with the Fidel Castro regime, Frondizi announced after a long meeting with his military chiefs that his government will "comply with all resolutions adopted at Punta del Este."

READY FOR ACTION

The meeting was held amid reports that the armed forces heads had ordered their forces to stand by for possible action against the Frondizi government.

The military leaders had handed Frondizi an ultimatum demanding an immediate break with Cuba and the resignation of Foreign Minister Miguel Angel Canciano, who headed the Argentine delegation at the inter-American conference.

SOOTHE MILITARY

Informants said the president—who has survived past military and other crises—managed to soothe the armed forces chiefs by agreeing to go along with the full anti-Castro declaration approved at Punta del Este.

Convict Spoils Record

MERIDIAN, Minn. (UPI)

—A convict given a 10-day leave because of his "excellent record" was arrested yesterday at a bank in Lake, Minn., which authorities said he planned to rob.

Robert Westbrock, 39, jailed for life in 1954 for bank robbery, was arrested after FBI agents received a tipoff he was coming.

Tourist Bureau Cuts Feared In Banner Year

Money Crisis Mounts

By TED PULFORD

Despite indications that Vancouver Island is on the brink of its biggest tourist year, the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau's financial committee, in a preliminary meeting yesterday, slashed the organization's 1962 budget by almost 10 per cent.

The committee chipped economies from a wide range of items in the budget before knocking it down to some $68,000—a drop of $8,000 from the 1961 budget of $76,000.

Bureau president Ald. Austin Curtis said further meetings were slated and that the figure is not final. He declined comment on the proposed cuts "at this time."

MAYOR, REEVES

The committee comprise the bureau's board of directors, which includes the mayor of Victoria and reeves of the Greater Victoria municipalities.

Bureau officials, meanwhile, are facing a crisis from still another sector.

DEEP TROUBLE

Victoria's much publicized Century 21 booth, designed to sell Vancouver Island to the millions attending the fair in Seattle beginning this spring, is in deep financial trouble.

The bureau earlier calculated that cost of renting the booth, staffing it and making available adequate literature would run to more than $52,000, and a separate fund was created.

HOPED TO RAISE

The provincial government has undertaken to pay up to $1,875 as a grant toward defraying cost of the literature. The bureau had hoped to raise the balance from ferry carriers, private business and municipal grants.

POOR RESPONSE

Responses to the bureau's pleas to Vancouver Island member communities for money has been so bad that there isn't enough money on hand to pay for the booth staff's personal accommodations.

"I don't honestly know what to do," the anxious bureau commissioner, William Hawkins, said last night.

URGENT NEED

"I have a lease to sign to secure the staff's accommodations down there—space is almost impossible to get—but I can't send it until some money comes in."

Mr. Hawkins has stressed the urgent need for funds to underwrite the booth operations and he pointed out that some is needed immediately.

SHORT-SIGHTED

Other tourist promotion experts attacked the "short-sighted lethargy" being encountered in business and municipal circles alike.

"Surely," said one, "they must know that the biggest tourist year of them all is here. Without funds for the proper operation of our booth in Seattle, the Island is going to lose a fortune."

PUSHED BUDGETS

Other tourist bureaus within a day's travel from Seattle aren't working under the same handicaps. Most have pushed their budgets up as much as 200 per cent over last year.

"Somebody has got to make a move soon," Mr. Hawkins said. "Our Seattle booth can be the key to a regular flood of tourists to the Island this summer, but we must have the money now. Otherwise our entire program is in jeopardy."

Fateful Weekend

Armor Bristles In Paris

PARIS (Reuters) — A powerful armored force converged on the French capital Friday with orders to crush mercilessly any attempt to disrupt the government's peace plans for Algeria. The force included tanks, armored cars and reinforcements of riot police.

The security operation was being directed by Interior Minister Roger Frey who declared the government would be "pitiless against all those who try to destroy internal peace" during coming critical weeks while the outcome of Algerian peace negotiations hangs in the balance.

SUCH FANATICS

Frey said he did not expect a large-scale anti-government action by the outlawed European Secret Army Organization, which is bitterly opposed to President de Gaulle's plans for an independent Algeria.

But he said "we are dealing with such fanatics that I do not exclude a very limited attempt at disorder."

TALK MONDAY

The rightmost attempt was expected to be timed to coincide with a broadcast by de Gaulle to the nation Monday.

To meet the threat, a security pattern has been drawn up to deploy the armored force at radio stations, public buildings and the capital's main thoroughfares.

LIGHT TANKS

The force included 32 fast, light tanks, about 70 light armored cars and an undisclosed number of heavy tanks.

Three hundred political prisoners shouting for a French Algeria rioted in Sante Prison.

Police said the prisoners refused to return to their cells after an exercise period, seized steel bars from their cots and battled for nearly an hour with guards and 10 truckloads of police rushed in to restore order.

MACMILLAN

Mac Faces Wall Of Boos, Jeers

OXFORD, England (Reuters) — Hundreds of Oxford University students booed and jeered Prime Minister Macmillan Friday night outside a hall where he was due to address university Conservatives.

Elsewhere, a Conservative backbencher made a speech interpreted widely as a call for Macmillan's resignation.

The backbencher, Sir Harry Legge-Bourke, said that for men of the 67-year-old Macmillan's generation "the time is coming for you now to hand over the responsibilities to men whose fortune is not to have had to bear so many grievous years the burdens you have borne."

FORCE PATE

When Macmillan arrived at the Oxford meeting to make a speech justifying Western nuclear policy, he had to force a path through a cat-calling crowd of several hundred nuclear disarmament advocates who had been unable to gain admittance and were bawling him down.

MAC MUST GO?

London Daily Telegraph, a Conservative newspaper, carried a story on the Legge-Bourke speech reporting "this is the first time the 'Mac must go' whispering campaign, rife for some months among a section of Conservative MPs, has been publicly amplified to 'loud and clear' strength."

Twice-Dead Doctor Loses Fight for Life

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dr.

Jerome A. Stroom died Friday night—almost 128 hours after a doctor had pronounced him dead. The dentist had survived twice this week after his heart and breathing had stopped.

Dr. Stroom, 37, had been listed in critical condition since entering hospital Sunday. He never regained consciousness.

A doctor at the family home Sunday night carefully checked respiration, heartbeat and pulse, according to relatives, and pronounced Dr. Stroom dead.

At a funeral chapel 75 minutes later, a mortuary attendant glanced at a stretcher in the preparation room and shouted: "My God, he's breathing!"

British Battle Sabotage

LONDON (UPI)—The Admiralty yesterday reported the second case of apparent sabotage aboard a Royal Navy ship in the last three days.

TWO ARRESTED

Officials said two men were arrested at Portsmouth, where an attempt was made to flood key compartments of the 2,020-ton destroyer HMS Carron. The officials said they found smashed gauges and damaged wiring in the destroyer's operations room. The damage was considered minor, they said.

CARRIES HIT

Earlier this week, the Admiralty reported that detectives were investigating the apparently deliberate cutting of wires on board Britain's largest aircraft carrier, HMS Eagle, now undergoing repairs at Devonport.

Must Guilt Be Proven? Folklore, Says Lawyer

OTTAWA (CP)—The principle that a man is innocent until proven guilty was described as "folklore" yesterday by Toronto lawyer John Honsberger.

He said preliminary study has turned up 40 to 50 Ontario statutes that call for "reverse onus" in which a man charged with an offence is required to prove his innocence.

Mr. Honsberger said there are another 40 or 50 statutes that "put the lie" to the theory that a man's home is his castle.

Those acts allow a variety of inspectors and officials to enter a private home to search for something or other.

Mr. Honsberger was reporting to a panel at the annual meeting of the Ontario Bar Association. He is chairman of the association's civil liberties section. The reverse-onus feature of some acts may be justified, he said. But it appeared that it was creeping into many statutes as legislative draftsmen found it "an easy thing to do."

THETIS ISLAND FERRY ETHEL HUNTER

Lost Nine Hours Ferry Turns Up

Fog-wreathed Stuart Channel 50 miles north of Victoria early this morning concealed the mystery of the missing Thetis Island Ferry Ethel Hunter with eight persons aboard.

Up to press time the B.C. highways department vessel was more than nine hours overdue on a half-hour run which was to have taken it from Preedy Harbor to the industrial town of Chemainus.

Search and rescue officials were mounting a full-scale search of the area and by midnight three radar-equipped tugs were scouring the channel.

FOG BLANKET

The ferry left Preedy Harbor at 4:45 p.m. carrying five passengers, four cars and a crew of two.

Air search of the reef-infested shores of Stuart Channel was prevented up to 1 a.m. today by a heavy blanket of fog which at last reports was said to be lifting.

At Sea Island Airport an RCAF rescue craft was standing by with engines warming in the hope the weather would clear.

RAIN, TOO

Heavy rain scoured the search area during most of the night.

Ferry officials said the Ethel Hunter was equipped with a rudimentary form of radar.

At the helm when the ferry left on the first leg of her second-to-last round trip of the day was a relief skipper

BULLETIN

The vessel was found by the search tug Raven Hill at 1:22 a.m. only 1/2 mile north of the berthing dock.

The skipper apparently lost his way in the fog and nearly went aground at Klaskan Beach. When he went astern the ferry tangled in a log boom.

who had been about a week on the run.

"We're terribly concerned," said Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi at 1 a.m. from Vancouver.

He said he had asked the RCAF to do "everything it possibly can."

CITY SKIPPER

"There's nothing we can do except sit and wait," he said.

Reported on board the ferry were Capt. C. W. Croft of Victoria, her master, engineer Leo McAstocker of Thetis Island, and passengers Mr. and Mrs. G. Richard Nixon and Mrs. Mary Duncan, all of the marine medical mission on Thetis Island. A Vancouver Island station wagon was among the vehicles on board but it was not known who was with it.

MYSTERY GROWN

Mystery of the missing ferry deepened at 1:15 a.m. when the Colonist's Chemainus correspondent, Mrs. M. B. Robinson, said visibility had improved and that the lights of Thetis Island could be seen from Chemainus Harbor.

Mrs. Robinson had been for more than an hour on board one of the search vessels and said that visibility in much of the area was good.

Capt. M. C. Clulow, of Thetis Island, one of the Ethel Hunter's regular skippers for the past three years, speculated that the relief captain had merely dropped anchor near Chemainus to await improved visibility.

EQUIPMENT

The steel-hulled ferry carried a 10-foot lifeboat, several life rafts and more than enough life jackets for her normal accommodation of 38 passengers, he said.

One woman who got tired of waiting for the ferry on the Chemainus end hired a water taxi which got lost three times in the same fog which concealed the fate of the overdue ferry.

She said its skipper found Thetis on the fourth attempt after once turning back.

Capt. Clulow said the ferry had a foghorn which could have been heard for a distance of two miles. It also had a bell which was supposed to be rung at one minute intervals if the vessel was lying at anchor in a fog, he said.

FERRY SEEN

Alan, 13, and Dennis, 15, Beddows reported seeing the ferry at about 5:30 p.m. about 75 to 100 feet off Hospital Rock coming into harbor. They saw a man on deck and were about to call that the ferry was too close to shore when it suddenly stopped — and reversed into the fog.

Thetis Island residents said they started searching along the shoreline at 6:30 p.m., covering about six miles by foot and car and "blowing horns and flashing lights."

Most said they weren't too concerned over the fate of the vessel. They believed it would drop anchor in the fog and await better visibility.

U.S. Plans Total Embargo

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy was reported Friday night to have decided to slap a total embargo on U.S. imports from Cuba.

The United States has been buying about $35,000,000 worth of Cuban products a year, mostly tobacco.

Informants said Kennedy's action will not end U.S. sales to Cuba, limited to food and medicine and amounting to some $15,000,000 a year.

Took Son to Hospital

Five Burn in Home While Parents Out

JOAQUIN, Tex. (UPI)—Mr. and Mrs. Carl Darden left home early yesterday to take an epileptic son to a hospital. While they were away fire destroyed their home and five other Darden children perished. The parents returned home in time to find the walls and roof of their three-room home collapsing.

The children were Jenam, 16; Carolyn Sue, 6; Tommy Joe, 7; Kathy Mae, 4; and Glenn Allen Darden, 2.

"Four of the bodies were stacked atop each other in a three-foot space between an old washing machine and a wall in the small room," a policeman said. "The fifth body was close by."

"It appeared that the 16-year-old girl, who had been left in charge by her mother, had tried to herd the other children out of the single door leading from the bedroom. But either heat or smoke kept them from ever reaching the door."

Dutch Troops May Stop At U.S. Isles

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The state department said yesterday it has granted permission for a plane transporting 110 Dutch soldiers to New Guinea to use commercial facilities in U.S. territory in the Pacific as stopover points.

The Netherlands government has assured the United States the troops will be wearing civilian clothes and not carrying weapons for the trip.

Japan denied the Dutch permission to use Tokyo as a stopping point.

Retarded Teen-Ager Admits Slaying Girl, 6

SANTA ANA, Calif. (UPI)—The body of a six-year-old girl, brutally slashed with a pocket knife, was found buried yesterday in a shallow grave and police said a mentally-retarded teen-ager confessed to the slaying.

Eileen Ryan was found missing from her bed early yesterday and a systematic search was started by police. Her bloodstained pyjamas were found in a vacant apartment block several blocks away and police then concentrated their search for a body.

At the same time, the mother of Dale Norby Wilson, 15, called to report her son had been away all night and returned with bloodstained clothing and shoes.

'Obvious Link' To Panel

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Police ordered round-the-clock guards at the homes of two ministers whose homes were damaged by homemade bombs while they addressed a meeting on the threat of the "radical right."

The continued precaution was reported as a massive search, involving federal, state and local authorities, was undertaken for the bombers. Police still were without major leads.

The report of the bombings, although the explosion caused only minor damage and no injuries, brought a wave of speeches deploring the incident, including remarks from the attorney-general and the Congress.

The police placed 24-hour guards at the home of actress Marsha Hunt, as well as the residences of the two clergymen. All participated in the forum under way at the time of the explosions.

Police said bombs which exploded at the residences of the Revs. John Simmons and Brooks Walker, both in the San Fernando Valley, were "obviously linked" to appearances by the two at a forum.

The explosive was packed into lead pipes—just as was a bomb police found outside the Los Angeles office of the United Nations Assn. Dec. 7.

OUTRAGE
Attorney-General Robert Kennedy, before starting on a world-wide tour, deplored the bombings which narrowly missed injuring families of the two men.

Mayor Sam Yorty called on the police for their help in apprehending anyone responsible for bombing the homes. "We're outraged and very ashamed of this thing happening to our community," Yorty said.

Mr. Walker said he thought "the kind of person involved in this act would be emotionally unbalanced."

The Extremist Course

THE FORMER LEADER of the Mau Mau, Jomo Kenyatta, who is now chief spokesman for African nationalists in Kenya, has outlined for his followers some of the changes he will institute when the East African colony attains its independence, expected later this year.

In his long list of proposed revisions, three items—dealing with the future position of the white settlers, the Bible, and land for the Africans—have been given priority.

In dealing with the first matter, Mr. Kenyatta has promised that when Kenya becomes a republic all white men will be required to address all Africans as Bwana (master). If they fail to do so they will be expelled from the country.

The second pledge is that he will rewrite the Bible on the basis that it infers that all angels are white and the devil is black. "We reject such false propaganda. And we shall rewrite these Christian teachings when we get into power," he said.

His third point is that all European-owned or developed land will be confiscated by the new government and given to the Africans. He advised his followers during a recent tour not to be foolish enough to go to the expense now of purchasing land from the white settlers, because they would soon get it for nothing.

On this latter pledge, oddly enough, Mr. Kenyatta ran into some trouble with his fellow Africans. He has been accused of promising all the land to his own tribe, the Kikuyu, and this has annoyed members of the Wakamba and Masai tribes to the extent that a minor revolution has taken place in his Kenya African National Union party.

The fact that these interesting snippets of news were reported in the British press has upset Mr. Kenyatta's chief lieutenant, Mr. Tom Mboya, general secretary of KANU, who has now accused Fleet Street of trying to provoke a split in Kenya's national leadership.

Hitting back at Britain where he thinks it will hurt most, Mr. Mboya has announced that Britain will have to watch her step if she wants Kenya to remain in the Commonwealth after it becomes an independent republic. Kenya's future relationship with Britain, he went on to say, would depend largely on Britain's behavior in matters such as South Africa and Portugal.

It thus appears that the Kenya African leaders have already determined to follow the extremist policy advocated and practised by Ghana's Dr. Nkrumah, rather than the moderate course chosen by Nigeria.

A Fair System

THE PLAN of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau to raise extra sums of money this year by seeking special contributions from those who benefit most directly from tourist trade should commend itself to the community.

As outlined by Mr. Percy Scutrah to the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the proposal is to seek "a sum we feel fair" from hotels, motels, stores and all businesses that can be expected to reap profit from the influx of visitors. Retail stores, for instance, will be asked to contribute at the rate of $1.50 for each employee.

The bureau needs $72,000 for its regular operations, another $55,000 to advertise Victoria and the Island at the Century 21 world fair in Seattle, and $9,500 for special magazine advertising, and these amounts, one would think, are minimal. This year as never before the bureau has an opportunity to do a job which can have not only immediate but long-lasting results, for many of the tourists drawn to Seattle by the fair if also led to Vancouver Island by the bureau's efforts can be counted on to return again and again.

Some local businesses have been accused in the past of gaining the benefit of tourist trade but declining to help pay the cost of attracting visitors. The new assessment plan seems to be as fair an arrangement as can readily be devised, and it is to be hoped that all firms receiving direct advantage from tourist business will take it in good part and co-operate to their utmost ability.

There is no suggestion of course that stores, restaurants, hotels and the like are the only beneficiaries. The whole community gains through a thriving tourist industry. This fact is recognized to some degree in the regular civic grant of $50,000 to the publicity bureau (although the original idea was that the money came from business in the form of trades licence fees) and in smaller grants from the other Greater Victoria municipalities.

The special situation this year, however, would seem to invite the councils to consider if their grants could not be increased for this occasion.

Out of His Element

IT IS A PITY when famous generals, rightfully renowned for their exploits, blot their copybooks by venturing into realms beyond their competence. It is an old saw that military skill is not necessarily allied to political aptitude.

Field Marshal Lord Montgomery is the current instance in question. Ever since leaving the army he has "meddled," as one critic puts it, in international affairs. And usually with statements that betray an inadequate understanding of the tortuous course of high-level politics.

His latest outburst does nothing to sustain his reputation. He tells a South African audience that if the blacks of the north unite and move south against the whites he will personally draw his sword for the Afrikaans. This naturally won him an ovation from his audience but it was rhetoric and simply an old warhorse breathing fire.

When he visited China he spoke in much different vein, and it is his simplicity of outlook in political matters that shows how much he is out of his element. He seems to think that one wave of his marshal's baton can cure all ills.

One has to agree regretfully with the London paper which advises him to stay retired and leave politics to the politicians.

In his own military heyday he would never have agreed that politicians should plan his battles.

The sad thing is that so superb a soldier, probably the best British general since Wellington, should dim his halo by amateurish activity in a realm which patently is not his own.

The Misfit.

Report From Ottawa

Canada's Taxation Bite

By ARTHUR BLAKELY

FORMER Bank of Canada governor Graham Towers said the other day that Canadians were being over-taxed. Since many if not most Canadian taxpayers have suspected this for a good many years, Mr. Towers' observations might well have attracted very little public attention, but for the way in which he expressed them.

The tax revenues of Canadian governments, he suggested, should be considered as a percentage of Canada's gross national product figures. All levels of government in Canada were taking something like 26 per cent of the GNP total. And he was sure that this percentage was much too high.

Last summer, the Canadian Tax Foundation undertook a study of relative tax burdens of some 30 countries, based on statistical data collected by the United Nations.

The Canadian Tax Foundation survey used figures based on a three-year average (1956-1958). Revenues of all levels of government were covered. And these revenues were expressed as a percentage of gross national product.

In the survey, Canada's tax burden emerged fairly well down the list.

At 28.6 per cent of the Canadian GNP, it placed twelfth on the list behind Austria (33 per cent), France (31.6 per cent), Norway (30.4 per cent), Luxembourg (30 per cent), Finland (29.1 per cent), Sweden (28.6 per cent), The Netherlands (29 per cent), The United Kingdom (28.6 per cent), New Zealand (28.4 per cent), the United States (28.1 per cent), and Denmark (24.5 per cent).

The first dozen countries below Canada on the list included: Ireland (22.9 per cent), Australia (22.4 per cent), Belgium (22.3 per cent), Japan (19.5 per cent), Greece (19.6 per cent), Italy (19.5 per cent), Chile (19 per cent), the Belgian Congo (18.5 per cent), Portugal (17.4 per cent), Taiwan (17 per cent), Spain (16.9 per cent), the Rhodesian and Nyasaland Federation (16.3 per cent).

The Canadian Tax Foundation study commented: "The eleven countries which had higher tax burdens than Canada on the gross national product measure included almost all the advanced industrial nations of the western world. . . . Most of these countries have a more extensive social security system than Canada and this is one reason why their tax burden appears higher. All social security contributions are considered part of taxes in United Nations statistics."

By the same token, Canada's social security system would appear to be more extensive than that of many or most of the 12 countries listed above.

A Point of Danger

By MARQUE CHILDS

IN the past five or six years the United States has poured into the small country of Laos at least $350,000,000 in one form or another. Missions of various kinds—diplomatic, military, intelligence, training in the use of modern weapons and improved agriculture—have all struggled to try to impose a Western-oriented government on a primitive people resistant to any centralized regime.

Yet, for all this effort with a population of perhaps 2,000,000, Laos is today still a point of critical danger. It could be the very near future pose a major test of strength between East and West. And here in the U.S.A. the political opposition seems only too eager to raise the cry, already sounded by Republican National Chairman William F. Miller, of "who loused up Laos?"

On taking office a year ago the Kennedy administration found that Laos had become a client state, dependent for its existence on several million dollars a week made available to the clique of princes heading the government in the capital of Vientiane. As able American correspondents, such as Keyes Beech of The Chicago Daily News, have shown, corruption and black marketing both in Thailand, from whence the flow of aid comes, and in Laos itself, dispirited not a little of this help.

Initially serious thought was given to direct American military intervention. But Laos is a completely landlocked country with no roads and virtually no air strips for conducting modern military operations. If Korea, with its ports and its proximity to Japan, was all but lost with massive American intervention, Laos would be a tougher place to hold.

The president decided to uphold a neutral Laos. He sent Averell Harriman out to conduct negotiations and subsequently appointed his assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs.

Harriman's background and perspective are significant. As the war ended in 1945 he was the first to warn of Stalin's militant intention to consume the world. This was not a popular view then, so a result of the wartime alliance, a great many people wanted to believe in peace and harmony.

Negotiating with the Communists at Geneva last year, Harriman became convinced that Moscow was also prepared to settle for a neutral Laos. If the fighting were resumed, Red China would almost certainly intervene in force across an undefended border and the danger of a full-scale war would be grave indeed. It was here that the strained relations between the free with the easiest tax burdens were Nigeria (9.1 per cent), Korea (9.8 per cent), Honduras (10.2 per cent), Jamaica (11.6 per cent), and Panama (12.2 per cent), in that order.

Many important countries of the western world, Asia and Africa are missing from the list because, for one reason or another, they are not co-operating with the United Nations

Statistical Office in the collection of data of this kind.

West Germany is a notable absentee. But the Canadian Tax Foundation points out that figures available from other sources demonstrate that the booming West German economy is carrying perhaps the world's heaviest tax burden.

During the 1955-57 period government revenues in West Germany amounted to 33.5 per cent of the West German gross national product, enough to move it well ahead of Austria on the newer UN data list.

Also missing from the survey are East Germany, Switzerland, Russia, Mainland China, India and a number of Latin American states. Switzerland, presumably, would rank fairly well on the list. But where the others would place were the figures available, is anybody's guess.

Under the agreement he negotiated with his opposite number at Geneva, Soviet delegate Georgi Pushkin, a neutralist government was to be formed in Vientiane with Prince Souvanna Phouma as the principal neutral. Souvanna had been pushed out of the government in the fall of 1960, largely through the machinations of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, and effective power put in the hands of Phoumi Nosavan, a military "strong man." The front for the "strong man" was Prince Boun Oum, who is head of the present government.

Boun Oum—in reality Nosavan—is now refusing to live up to the terms of the Geneva agreement and share the offices. Fighting has begun again, although its scope, as invariably in the past when alarmist reports have come out of Vientiane, is in doubt. There has been in the past little evidence of the willingness of the American-equipped forces to fight the Communist-equipped and led Pathet Lao guerrillas.

What Harriman has been discovering in his new office, as he is frank to say, is not that the United States has created satellites in Southeast Asia but that this country tends itself to be a satellite.

The client states, such as Laos and Thailand that are receiving massive infusions of American aid, seem more and more to consider that they are doing the government in Washington a favor by accepting this aid. They clamor for direct military action, but what they themselves offer in support of such action is negligible.

This is the situation Harriman confronts. He has never seen any reason to change his view of the hard-boiled nature of the Soviets' ultimate goal. But he believes this government has got itself into an untenable position in Southeast Asia and he means if he can to remedy it.

A little past history is instructive. When the Eisenhower administration came to power in 1953 a loud demand went up to release the secret documents on China under the belief of many Republicans that they would prove a charge that the Democrats, through incompetence and/or worse, had "lost China." But John Foster Dulles, after one quick look, vetoed this move. The documents showed all too clearly the blunders and weaknesses of the Chiang Kai-shek regime. The wartime records are still in the secret file.

Harriman is saying today that it is essential to consider the realities in Southeast Asia. And to try to save what can still be saved out of the mess in Laos.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

DRIVING on the snow-margined highway. I came upon a large flock of snow buntings that were scattered along the pavement apparently in quest of salt. I slackened speed the moment I detected the beautiful little white and buff birds; but even so, they swirled up painfully close to the car. And I was distressed to feel, rather than hear, a faint tap on the car hood.

I ran the car over to the shoulder, and my companion, a biologist by profession but a philosopher by vocation, got out with me while we walked back. On the side of the pavement was a dead bunting.

"It is a juvenile," said the biologist, examining it. "You realize what you have done? You have brought to an end something that has survived from the dawn of time. If it had been an adult bird, you could have consorted yourself with the thought that it had probably nested last year and passed on the miracle of life. But this juvenile will now never transmit the mystery, in it, a million or a hundred million years of continuous life now abruptly ends."

It is disturbing to think of life as an endless chain in the one direction, backward. (Copyright, Canada Wide)

Lost Islands

By JOHN CAMPBELL,
from Sapporo, Japan

FROM the extreme northern tip of Hokkaido you can see the vague outlines of two tiny islands which loom large in Russo-Japanese relations. Hokkaido is the northernmost of the four "main" Japanese islands. At the end of the Second World War it narrowly escaped occupation by Russian troops who moved down from Sakhalin through the Kurile chain to Habomai and Shikotan—two Hebridean islands inhabited by crab and salmon fishermen.

To some 50,000 Japanese, Habomai and Shikotan, plus the neighboring islands of Kunashiri and Etorofu, represent both the homeland from which they have been exiled since 1945 and a hazard to avoid; to the Soviet government, however, they are a major bargaining counter in relations with Japan.

The islands, which the Japanese call the Southern Kuriles, were actually the only part of Japan to be occupied by the Soviet Union at the end of the war. Like their counterparts in Europe, they seem unlikely to be returned to their original owners within the foreseeable future.

Most of the inhabitants who fled ahead of the Russian troops are still living as refugees in the shabby fishing villages along Hokkaido's coast or are eking out a living in the hot spring resorts which dot the central part of the island. Those who follow the old occupation must give their former homes a wide berth or run the danger of joining the three or so Japanese fishing boats which are seized by the Russians every week. On the bleak northern coastline, American and Japanese radar stations keep a careful watch on the jet strips which the Russians have built on Etorofu and Shikotan.

In many respects the issue of Japan's "lost territories" is one which unites all Japanese political parties (except the Communist Party). No Japanese government could afford to make any significant concession on the question and expect to survive. The price demanded by the Russians (in hints and oblique references) is so high that it would make even a neutralist-minded Socialist government hesitate—the abrogation of the U.S.-Japan Security Treaty.

Mr. Khrushchev has implied that Russia would be prepared to re-examine its policy on the Kuriles if the Security Treaty were abrogated. At other times, however, he has bluntly rejected all Japanese claims to both the Southern Kuriles and the main Kurile chain. In a letter to Premier Hayato Ikeda last September, Mr. Khrushchev said that Japan should "forget" all about its claims to the northern islands.

Morever, the Japanese argue that Russia never signed the San Francisco Peace Treaty (there never has been a formal peace treaty between Japan and the Soviet Union) and the only vestige of a legal claim to the islands which it can put forward is therefore the sentence in the 1945 Yalta Agreement which says that the Kurile Islands shall be handed over to the Soviet Union.

"But why should we pay any attention to a secret agreement between two outside powers?" a Japanese foreign ministry official asked recently. Even stronger is the Japanese argument that the islands currently being disputed are not part of the Kuriles at all and therefore are not covered by the San Francisco Treaty or the Yalta Agreement even should Japan recognize their validity.

The four islands of Habomai, Shikotan, Etorofu and Kunashiri had never, until the end of the Second World War, been under any sovereignty other than that of Japan.

The inclination of conservative politicians is to be "hung for a sheep as well as a lamb", and demand the return of the whole Kurile group; opposition Socialists would like to see Japan's defence ties with the West used as a bargaining counter to have the islands returned.

Meanwhile, the displaced fishermen along Hokkaido's northern coast look longingly at their familiar homes and the radar eyes of the U.S. and Japanese forces check the daily flights of Russian planes from the "lost territories."

Secret Flight Ends in Crash

TRENTON, Ont. (CP) — Twenty-three U.S. and Canadian Air Force personnel, on a secret Arctic flight, escaped injury Friday when their limping North Star aircraft crashed while attempting to return to base.

The four-engine plane crashed about two miles from a radar station on the Distant Early Warning line, 1,000 miles north of Winnipeg. The mystery flight, described as "a staff visit to northern bases," came to grief on the last leg of the mission shortly after take-off from the RCAF station at St. Hubert, Que., near Montreal.

The air force said the plane took off in clear, 26-below weather and shortly after leaving the airport, Ft. LA Richard Merrick of Ottawa reported engine trouble.

He was trying to return the craft to the landing strip but had to land it on ice with the wheels up.

No Sirens at 65 'In Some Areas'

OTTAWA (CP) — Suppose the speed limit is 60 miles an hour. How fast can the motorist go before the sirens wail? RCMP Commissioner C. W. Harverson said Friday a 10 per cent leeway is allowed by the federal force in "most areas" it polices. That would mean driving at 65 with impunity.

There was one catch: The commissioner didn't specify the areas. The RCMP acts as a provincial police force in all areas except Ontario and Quebec. Commissioner Harverson made this point during a panel discussion at the annual meeting of the Ontario Bar Association.

DUNCAN — A woman driver charged with failing to stop on approaching a stationary school bus on the Trans-Canada Highway Jan. 5 was acquitted yesterday when the court ruled the Crown had failed to introduce sufficient evidence.

Mrs. Dorothy Castle of Duncan was charged following an accident which sent seven-year-old Richard Dupont to hospital with extensive head injuries.

Magistrate D. K. McAdam ruled the prosecution had failed to introduce certain evidence essential to the charge.

EVIDENCE NEEDED
Conviction requires evidence to show an offence took place outside of a business or residential district, the bus was a properly designated school bus. It was stopped on a highway and a signal was displayed indicating the bus was loading or discharging children.

The magistrate said no evidence had been introduced to show the private school bus was properly designated as such, or the accident took place outside a business or residential district.

Bus driver Michael Dwyer of Duncan told court that while the last child left the bus he noticed the oncoming car.

FAILED TO SHOW
He said: "I assumed from the speed it would not stop. I watched the progress of the vehicle and saw how it struck the child."

Also acquitted for lack of vital evidence was bus driver Dwyer, who was charged with stopping the school bus on the highway when it was possible to pull off the travelled portion of the road.

Magistrate McAdam ruled the Crown failed to show it was possible to pull off the road at the spot where the accident took place.

Thieves Start Cars—Why Can't Police?

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal police would like a few tips from car thieves.

Since sub-zero weather settled in last Saturday, 19 police cars have been frozen into immobility each night on the headquarters parking lot. One night there were 32.

Yet Thursday night, when temperatures plummeted, thieves managed to steal 10 private cars. Police wish they knew how the thieves got them started.

New Ferry Sails Today 500 Guests on Board

Aboard will be more than 500 guests of the government and at Swartz Bay a contingent of more than 200 from Vancouver will join the ship.

Harold Husband, the builder, will formally hand over the ship to Premier Bennett in a brief ceremony during the four-hour cruise.

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated yesterday Canada will reject a U.S. call for free world sanctions against Cuba and will continue to trade with the Castro regime.

He told Commons that while Canada desires to co-operate with friendly nations it must base such decisions on what it believes "appropriate" for itself.

DOOM U.S. HOPES

The prime minister's statement, greeted with applause from government members, appeared to doom any hope U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk had of enlisting Canada's support in isolating Cuba. It was the third time this week Canada reaffirmed its policy of continued trade and diplomatic relations with Cuba.

Mr. Diefenbaker also dismissed a suggestion that Cuba was using dollars earned in trade with Canada to foster subversion throughout Latin America. He said the trade was so heavily in Canada's favor it was actually taking away from Cuba dollars earned elsewhere.

He noted that the United States, which embargoes the shipment of all but medical supplies and food, was buying some six times as many goods from Cuba as was Canada.

Mr. Clark is chairman of an intermunicipal committee of building inspectors who are drafting a set of uniform regulations.

Seven of 20 planned weekly meetings have been held to study the National Building Code.

With this in mind, application has been made to the denominational extension department for the services of a minister-at-large for three months starting Jan. 1, 1963. It is hoped that after that time the group's strength will be enough to call in a minister.

In addition a committee has been appointed to start fund-raising and aim at acquisition of a permanent home. Members of the committee are Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, Dr. Geoffrey Gilbert and Wesley Smardon.

Merton College, first residential college at Oxford University, was founded in 1264.

Faces Eight More

King Freed of One Theft Charge

Former city real estate dealer Milton King was discharged on the first of nine counts of theft by Magistrate William Ostler in city police court yesterday.

King immediately faced a second count of theft by failing to account for funds entrusted to him by Frederick and Rebecca Bennett.

Mr. Ostler said evidence presented during the preliminary hearing of the first charge against King failed to prove he had made fraudulent use of a portion of $3,000 entrusted to him by Patterson-Hunt Building Ltd.

A total of nine charges were laid against King following investigation of his real estate business.

Mr. Ostler said he accepted one of three points presented by defence counsel David Hummel in his argument against commitment for trial in a higher court.

"I am convinced the accused did receive the money, the question is did he fraudulently fail to produce it when required to do so," said Magistrate Ostler.

He termed defence counsel's case a "very able submission."

Mr. Ostler said the prosecution had proven Mr. King had received money from Patterson-Hunt Building Ltd. Some of the money, he said, was honestly paid out, but some was not paid at all.

"The onus was then on the Crown to prove the failure of payment was fraudulent. This was not done."

Evidence showed Mr. King's bookkeeper maintained two client's bank accounts for Paterson-Hunt. One account was not produced in evidence to show it lacked the funds set out in the charge.

"Even though the accounting figures might suggest it, there is nothing to show the accused used any of the money improperly," said the magistrate.

He said the evidence was not sufficient to "put the accused on his trial."

The second charge alleges theft by failing to account for $403 entrusted to King Realty. A day will be set for trial Wednesday.

Outsiders for Study?

Pruning Lecture

A pruning demonstration by Dr. Alan J. Liller, district horticulturist will be held by the Gordon-Hend Garden Club at 2:30 p.m. today in the orchard of W. L. Caldwell, 1791 Feltham.

Engineers of the four Greater Victoria municipalities have recommended that outside consultants be hired to conduct a $76,000 traffic study in the area, Mayor R. B. Wilson said yesterday.

"Our engineers themselves feel they don't have the time or the equipment to handle the study," he said.

"A considerable part of the study requires the use of large computing machines and none of our municipalities has one."

The study has been recommended by the Capital Region Planning Board.

Ald. Lily Keeps Powder Dry

Ald. Lily Wilson, city council's arbiter of trading stamps, is holding her fire to see if the provincial government brings in legislation against the sales promotion scheme.

"If the province is going to work on it I don't see that I need to do anything about it," Mrs. Wilson said, explaining why she failed to mention trading stamps in city council as she promised recently.

"If the legislation does not go through I will take some sort of steps."

Pipeline Creditors Invited to Meeting

Creditors of a pipeline company which has $220,000 of unpaid debts owing businessmen in the Peace River area have been asked to meet in Fort St. John to discuss settlement.

Commercial Transport Minister Westwood said yesterday officials of the B.C. Oil Transmission Co. Ltd. have met the government to discuss the unpaid accounts of Pioneer Pipeline Contractors, which has gone into bankruptcy. The company started building a pipeline for B.C. Oil.

"While B.C. Oil Transmission declares it is not legally responsible for debts of Pioneer it is, nevertheless, concerned about the situation and anxious that the matter be resolved," said Mr. Westwood.

So, "officials of B.C. Oil are arranging to meet creditors in Fort St. John Tuesday."

Garden Notes

Spring Space Cramp

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Those home gardeners who are fortunate enough to own a heated greenhouse are just about to get started on their busiest season of the year, with seeds of bedding-out annual flowers to sow, tomatoes to start, rooted cuttings to pot on, chrysanthemum stools to be forced into growth and slips taken and a dozen and one other jobs to be done.

The big problem is to find enough room for everything, and those greenhouse gardeners who find themselves cramped for space, every spring should try their hand at putting up a few shelves to take care of the overload. I use the word "try" advisedly, for there are a lot of ifs, ands and buts involved.

In the first place, a greenhouse shelf should never be placed where it is likely to cut off too much light from the plants below. We don't have too much sunshine available at this season of the year and we can't afford to waste any of it. Seedlings raised in insufficient light become "drawn" and skinny as they reach up for what little light there is and never make sturdy, vigorous plants.

Another problem in the placement of temporary shelves involves the watering of the pots and boxes of seedlings and slips. One very common error is to mount a shelf so close to the eaves that the watering can cannot be tipped up enough to make the water flow. Keep an eye on the drip following the watering, too, for the drip water which has passed through a potful of soil can be poisonous to the plants below the shelf.

Temperature control poses a whole new set of problems at this season of the year. You need a lot of warmth, preferably from below the pots and boxes, to get seeds to germinate, but it would be very expensive to heat up the whole greenhouse to germinating temperature. Besides, so much warmth wouldn't be good for the other plants. Even newly-germinated seedlings need a lot cooler conditions than the high temperature required for vigorous germination of the seeds.

The trick here is to make a little propagating case—a greenhouse within a greenhouse, in fact—in which the temperature can be kept higher just for the germination of seeds and the rooting of slips. Use glass if you have some available, binding the corners together with electrician's tape, or it is easy to make up a light wooden framework and cover it with plastic film.

The extra warmth can come from a proper soil-heating cable embedded in sand beneath the pots and boxes or even from a couple of small, low-wattage electric light bulbs under the propagating case.

Various improvisations are sure to come to mind to provide a little extra warmth for the propagating case. As I think I told you before, one of my green-thumbed neighbors germinated a fine batch of seedlings last year over an electric heating pad snatched from his wife's bed. Such a pad, incidentally, has its own built-in thermostat to maintain the temperature at a constant level. Whatever you use, though, remember to shift the seedlings as soon as they come up from the propagating case into the cool of the outer greenhouse, for cool conditions and plenty of sunshine are absolutely essential to produce the necessary short, stocky growth.

Tough New Dollar Diplomacy

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay—There's a saying down here that "Latin America is just a bunch of nations united by a common mistrust of the United States." The avowed aim of Secretary of State Rusk and his American colleagues at the foreign ministers conference here has been to change this to read: "Latin America is just a bunch of nations united by a common mistrust of Cuba."

This—by a squeaky two-thirds majority of 14 to 1 with all the big nations, Mexico, Argentina, and Brazil abstaining—has been done.

Cuba has not been tossed out of the club; it has had its keys to the men's washroom taken away from it. The wily and some say slippery, tenuous, and unjustified legalism was resorted to in the absence of a clear legal right to throw Cuba out of the club.

The expulsion of Cuba from the inter-American system after a week of the most savage infighting behind closed doors lacked drama. A show of hands did it. There was only the clamor of the six who abstained, Ecuador, Chile, and Bolivia, in addition to the big three—arguing that when you are upholding the rule of law you must first have a law. I'm afraid there is quite a lot of force behind these arguments which are going to echo around Latin America for a long time to come. Secretary Rusk replied (weakly, I thought) "It is the business of foreign ministers to make political decisions."

If I understand his argument correctly, he implied the expulsion of Cuba was legal because there is nothing in the OAS charter that says it's illegal. (The opposition argues that it's illegal because there's nothing that says it's legal.) There was only the mildest splutter of applause for Rusk. "This is not our finest hour," muttered a correspondent. The U.S. achieved its aim, if indeed it has achieved them, by the toughest cracking of skulls reminiscent of the days of the Big Stick.

The Alliance for Progress is the new style dollar diplomacy as opposed to the old style or Coca Cola-United Fruit style dollars. They are the same dollars but liberals can comfort themselves that dollars spent to spread social welfare is a good thing, whereas dollars which enrich the United Fruit Company is not. Still, this kind of tough diplomacy will leave scars all over Latin America that will take a while to heal.

Every conference produces one word that everyone falls on as the solution to all their problems, meaning what you want it to mean and also meaning what the other guy wants it to mean. The big word to come out of this conference is "incompatibility," a word hitherto consigned mostly to the divorce courts, but destined after this conference for bigger things.

Both the Argentines and the Mexicans claim they brought "incompatibility" (in Spanish it's "incompatibilidad") to the conference. The Argentines thought up "suspension" in place of "expulsion" and the Colombians dragged in an even lovelier word for it, "deprived" ("deprived"). Everyone, it seems, contributed a nice shiny word to the conference except the U.S. which only brought money.

Elaine May Star in Film

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Marilyn Monroe approved Elaine May for a starring role in her film "Something's Got to Give." But the big question is, did Elaine's partner Mike Nichols give his consent? They've been a team for several years now and reached the height of their fame last season on Broadway—just the two of them, in a very successful revue-like show.

Anna Maria Alberghetti is talking a film deal with Sam Spiegel... Russ Tamblyn, the leader of the Jets in "West Side Story," told me with this film "I gained a career and lost 20 pounds." He's hoping for a Best Supporting Actor nomination.

Deborah Kerr and husband Peter Viertel have ice hockey rink in their Swiss garden. This game, says Deborah, is the best way to keep slim. I must try it. But maybe not. The "Twist" put my knee out.

The saddest thing that happened during "The War Lover," says star Steve McQueen, was the death of Mike Bell, 29, a parachutist who died plunging into the sea for a scene. There are more fatal accidents in pictures than most people realize.

How to get along with your co-star's wife. Capucine gifted William Holden's stepdaughter Virginia with a pair of jeweled earrings. Cap and Bill co-star in "The Lion." And you don't hear him saying as Laurence Harvey does, that the ex-model is not an actress.

Tony Perkins made a fast trip to Rome to visit Elizabeth Taylor and Eddie Fisher. Four months of "Cleopatra" is in the cans, and 20th Century-Fox is breathing easier.

Attention Anthony Quinn who will direct himself in "The Visit"—Marlon Brando who did it for "One Eyed Jacks" states "I don't think any actor should direct himself."

From Oscar-possibility Max Schell: "I'm convinced all films will become truly international within the next five years."

Jack Lemmon has raised the fire insurance on his house. It was saved twice by the same neighbor, Fred Jordan. Jack isn't betting on a third time. We'll soon be hearing Jack's album of piano music from Fred Astaire's music company.

I listened to Pamela Mason give a most gruesome account of Van Johnson's chopped off finger on radio the other day. According to Mrs. Mason, it isn't yet known whether the sewing on of Van's half finger will "take."

Officials Hail Move on Access

By ALEC MERRIMAN
Colonist Outdoors Editor

British Columbia fish and game officials were enthusiastic and surprised yesterday over Recreation Minister Westwood's notice that he will call for a legislative committee on public access as it applies to private roads.

Mr. Westwood served notice on the legislative order paper that he will make a motion to set up the committee when the House meets Monday. He will ask that the legislative committee receive submissions from industry and interested groups and then report to the legislature its observations and opinions.

"It is high time the government took some action on the access problem. The committee should be broadened to consider the whole access problem and not be limited to just private roads," said Ted Barsby, B.C. Federation of Fish and Game Clubs access chairman for all of British Columbia.

"There are many access problems that do not concern roads, such as fringe grazing lands where access is just a matter of crossing over them to get to hunting or fishing areas," he said. "One problem is that when Crown lands are alienated there is little or no consideration to access," he added.

Mr. Barsby is also access chairman for the Vancouver Island Affiliated Fish and Game Clubs and the Nanaimo Fish and Game Clubs.

"We will all submit briefs," he said.

The Nanaimo Club has already presented a brief or its area access problems to the recreation department, but there has been no action on it.

"We will submit it again to the new committee," Mr. Barsby said.

"I feel this committee is the only way to approach the access problem, without telling citizens what they should do with their own property," said Ed Meade, secretary-manager of the B.C. Federation of Fish and Game Clubs.

He said the foundation, the Interior zone, the Kamloops Rod and Gun Club and Kootenay fish and game clubs could all be expected to present briefs.

"Grazing lands present a tremendous access problem," he said.

Some of the big logging firms have been working for more than two years in an effort to work out a joint public access solution, and it is expected they will have an access plan to present to the legislative committee.

The legislative committee will be the fourth access committee to study the problem in two years.

$10,000 Leaves Edgelow Gloomy

Possibility of the provincial government giving Victoria a birthday grant of $10,000 has failed to enthuse Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, chairman of the city's centennial committee.

"I would hope that it will be much in excess of that," he said, "for the simple reason people expect so much of the capital city."

"We don't want to be hogish or anything, but people look forward to more things from the capital and I hope the government will take this into account."

Ald. Edgelow was commenting in the light of authoritative reports the government grant will be "about $10,000."

The reports suggest the government has a set scale of grants for such occasions with the amount of the grant determined by population and significance of the birthday—50th, 75th or 100th.

Merrill Lynch Blitzes London Financial Row

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Beachhead For Invader

The council of the London Stock Exchange is keeping a wary eye on the invader. It has already approved in principle a principle to allow some form of brokerage advertising, which the clearing banks are already doing.

But the Times doesn't agree with the London Stock Exchange that Merrill Lynch will be merely creating new business. "Where are the investors of tomorrow going to place their money?" it asks, and adds there is no two per cent stamp duty on dollar stocks.

CALEDONIAN LEASEHOLDS LTD. APPOINTMENT

Lord Ritchie of Dundee, chairman of the London Stock Exchange, says it is rather a pity that Merrill Lynch has done this because the exchange cherished the co-operation it has enjoyed with Canadian and United States brokerage firms operating in London.

What the British brokers fear is that Merrill Lynch, with its huge assets, 7,000 employees and 141 offices, could deep into the business now enjoyed by British brokers. The fact that Merrill Lynch in 1960 did 13 1/2 per cent of all the business on the New York Stock Exchange is held as proof that this U.S. giant cannot be ignored.

ABOVE A FIVER

Indeed its British managing director, Sherman Gray, told The Times that his firm positively encourages the small investor and would take an order for anything above a fiver. In addition, the customer has the benefit of a free 16-hour teletype connection with New York.

However, Mr. Gray says his company will not attempt to develop British business with Head Offices in Vancouver, B.C., takes pleasure in announcing the appointment of Mr. John B. Graham, C.A., to the position of Controller of the company. Mr. Graham, a native of Winnipeg, Manitoba, moved to Vancouver when he joined the company in 1960. He graduated in Chartered Accountancy in Manitoba and is a member of that Institute as well as being an Associate Member of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia. Prior to moving to the Coast, Mr. Graham was engaged for several years in the practice of Chartered Accountancy and for five years was employed by the Taxation Division of the Department of National Revenue. For the past two years Mr. Graham has been active in the management of Caledonian Leaseholds' various property holdings and investments. In 1960 he retired from the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders of Canada with the rank of Major. He is presently active in community affairs and is a member of the Stanley Park Kiwanis Club.

B-A Sulphur Goes to Asia

The company said that next week 5,000 metric tons of sulphur from the company's Pincher Creek gas processing plant will be shipped to Asia with 4,000 tons to go to India and 1,000 tons to Formosa. Last month a 250-ton shipment went to Malaysia.

The company extracts large quantities of sulphur from its natural gas production in Western Canada.

Round Milk Bottles Needed

Malaria Kills 54 in Java

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Malaria has hit a tea estate in West Java and has taken the lives of 54 people.

Remember the days when milk bottles used to be round? The Victoria Horticultural Society remembers and deeply regrets the change to square bottles.

The old-style bottles made excellent holders for exhibiting flowers when provided with cardboard collars which the society made up.

"Now we're stuck with several thousand collars and no round bottles," said society secretary George Wigan.

He said apart from the fact the society had this large surplus of collars, the cost of making up new collars to fit square bottles would be prohibitive.

Anyone having unwanted round bottles may call Mr. Wigan at GR 7-3263. The pint size is the most popular.

Tenders Called for Building With Solid, Modern Comfort

City officials have called tenders for what will be the most modern public building in Greater Victoria—a comfort station.

To be built in Stadacona Park, the building will have curved walls with a curved shielding wall across the front of the entrances and a flat roof which "floats" on top of a series of plywood triangles.

Walls of the comfort station bow out in the middle and the flat roof is supported on a series of triangular channels across the width of the building, resting on the tops of the triangles.

Tenders close with city clerk

Frank Hunter at noon Feb. 21. Plans and specifications are available from city hall on payment of a $25 deposit fee.

Motel Men Welcome Faulty-Tank Search

Motel operators will welcome a search of their premises for faulty propane gas tanks, a spokesman for a leading motel group in Victoria said last night.

Fred Martin, president of the Victoria and South Vancouver Island local of the B.C. Auto Courts and Resorts Association, welcomed an announcement that a search will begin immediately.

Chief provincial boiler inspector Donald Denham ordered the investigation after a coroner's jury recommended adequate inspection be made of propane tanks.
Six welding experts found a tank which exploded at a Vancouver motel causing the death of one man was of faulty construction.
FEW WOULD USE
Mr. Denham said the inspectors will especially seek out tanks made by the company that made the one which exploded, and the search will start in Vancouver, Victoria, New Westminster and Nelson.
Mr. Martin, who heads a group comprising 56 motels and auto courts, said most of the members are serviced by underground gas lines but a few on the outskirts of Greater Victoria would be using propane.

Cats Evade Taxes Collector Has Fits

CHICAGO—Five of the richest cats in Illinois are giving the tax collectors fits.

Margaret Theresa Montgomery left a $25,000 trust fund for Big Boy, Brother Cat, Blue Eyes, Mommy Kitty and Flat Nose. It pays $1,250 a year. That's a lot of catnip.

The will said if that was not enough money for them to live in their accustomed style, they could dip into the principal.

And there's the problem that has the Illinois inheritance tax collector up a tree.

How do you tax cats?

Annual taxes on trust funds are set by a mortality table which estimates how long the beneficiaries are likely to live.

Do you tax a cat for one life or the legendary nine? And how long is a cat likely to live in one life, or the legendary nine?

A veterinarian said the average life span of a cat in Chicago is about 10 years. Only thing is, four of these cats are already 12.

"How do you tax a cat who should have died two years ago?" asked the tax collector.

COLUMBUS—Ohio governor Michael DeWine has ordered 79-year-old Mrs. Martha Wise, who was paroled after 37 years in prison, returned because she has no place else to go. She was sent to prison in 1923 for the arsenic murder of an aunt who objected to the young widow marrying an older man.

Ease Traffic Torture, Bus Drivers Ask City

Victoria bus drivers yesterday sent city council a six-point program aimed at alleviating "extremely trying traffic conditions" in the downtown area.

The six points, covering double parking, mid-block

crosswalks, the Douglas-Fort intersection and bus zones, were explained in a letter from Local 108 of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America.

The local includes B.C. Electric bus drivers and drivers for other bus services in Greater Victoria. The points:

- Double parking is a common practice in Victoria, particularly on Fort Street, and appears to be on the increase.

- Crosswalks are extremely hazardous because vehicles, parked and double-parked, hide crosswalking pedestrians from drivers of oncoming vehicles.
- A "scramble" traffic light would make it easier to make left turns from Douglas to Fort and right turns from Fort to Douglas.

- Bus zones are not long enough for the number of buses scheduled for certain times during the day—at dusk, the most hazardous driving time, buses are forced to double-park.

- Bus zones should be strictly policed to prevent parking of other vehicles in the zones.
- Signs in bus zones should be changed to read "No Stopping." At present some bus zone signs read "No Parking."

The "scramble" light called for at Fort and Douglas is the type installed at Hillside and Blanchard and other city intersections.

These lights are set so traffic coming from one direction can move about 10 seconds before oncoming traffic from the opposite direction.

"... We would request that steps be taken toward their alleviation," the letter says.

Merger Study

Mayor Gives Reason

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Fire and police services are two major reasons why Oak Bay and Esquimalt should be included in a government-ordered study of intermunicipal government, Mayor R. B. Wilson said last night.

He was commenting on city council's recent decision to ask the provincial government to order a study of the Greater Victoria area with compulsory participation by Oak Bay and Esquimalt municipalities.

The decision has been protested in a strongly-worded joint statement issued by Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils after a secret meeting.

"I find it difficult to understand why Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils are so afraid of a study under the Municipal Act," Mayor Wilson said.

"I don't know what the answer will be. I am inclined to think, at the moment, with the knowledge available, that amalgamation might be the more sensible solution."

ASKED FOR STUDY

Mayor Wilson said city council has asked for a government-ordered study under a section of the Municipal Act dealing with metropolitan government because the amalgamation section does not include provision for a full government study.

"The Minister of Municipal Affairs has wide discretionary powers under sections 765 and 766 of the Act (dealing with metropolitan government and the compulsory study)."

ONLY DIFFERENCE

"The only difference is in when you come to the report. 'If it indicates metro, then the minister has discretionary powers to call for a vote.'

"If the report is for amalgamation, it is entirely up to the municipalities whether they vote on it or not."

Early Spring Due Says Groundhog

Victoria's own groundhog traditionally emerged from its home early yesterday morning but in vain searched the ground for its shadow.

Due to an overcast sky and mist, no shadow was cast and this means an early spring, according to legend.

As far as temperatures are concerned the weatherman will agree—for the next two days at least.

Today's high is expected to be 50 degrees. According to the old story, if the groundhog sees its shadow on Feb. 2, another six weeks of winter is due.

No Hasty Decision On Home

Mayor R. B. Wilson said last night there will be no hasty decision on whether the city-financed Mountain View Home for elderly men will be closed.

"It's a matter of resolving the financial and humanitarian aspects of it. The city is conscious of its responsibility to these men so we won't take quick action on it," he said.

The mayor visited the home yesterday, along with Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson and city welfare administrator William H. Hooton. He said later the home lost $22,000 last year, it needs rewiring and "it's running about half-full, with 26 men."

"It's a question of finding suitable or better facilities elsewhere at less cost," said the mayor.

Victim Warned About Perjury

Fight Over Pinball Winnings Real Cause of City Holdup?

Illegal Machine Hit In Youth's Defence

By ED COSGROVE

A youth charged with robbery with violence said in court yesterday his "victim" told him to take the money during a fight over pinball machine winnings.

Lloyd Keith deWolfe, 18, of 1018 Balmoral, who admitted the pop-bottle holdup of the City Hall News Stand Jan. 23, testified under protection of the Canada Evidence Act.

Defence counsel W. Berkeley Monteith at one point warned robbery victim Ben Hall, 235 Cook, of the penalties of perjury during cross-examination.

Mr. Monteith called Mr. Hall and other witnesses to back his claim of mitigating circumstances against a prison term for deWolfe.

The prosecution has alleged deWolfe waited until customers left the news stand then, while threatening Mr. Hall with a pop bottle, punched the till and stole $81.

DeWolfe said he had been playing the pinball machine for some time, putting in $5 worth of nickels and scoring 800 free games.

Score Wiped Out

He said he went to the wash-room and, when he returned, his score was wiped out. He said he lost his temper, grabbed a pop bottle and demanded his money back from Hall.

"He said 'the till is open' (and told me) to take all the money."

DeWolfe admitted winning money at the newsstand two previous times.

Both he and a companion made the admission under protection of the Canada Evidence Act.

Mr. Monteith called Mr. Hall

evasive and unco-operative on points of evidence, particularly dealing with operation of the pinball machine.

Mr. Hall admitted paying off players using the pinball machine. He said he "may have" paid off deWolfe at one time.

"Did he not... demand the return of his money?" Mr. Hall was asked.

"... Lies, he did not."

Later, Mr. Monteith said: "I suggest the witness Hall was not telling the truth..."

It is obvious the stand is operating an illegal gambling device—a sucker trap for youngsters of this age.

'Small Wonder'

"... I am not here to prosecute Hall... but the circumstances are such that extreme mitigation is called for... it is small wonder he (deWolfe) lost his temper."

He termed the defendant a "lad who is not too bright," and said the incident arose from a "fit of rage, not a desire to acquire a lot of money."

Operation of the machine he termed a "vicious situation... not only an illegal device, but... dishonestly run."

"It would be a very terrible thing for this immature lad to be sent to the penitentiary for this extremely serious offence... there is salvageable material in this lad."

Magistrate Oster said he held no brief with the operation of gaming machines, but this "is just another sad commentary on the type of life this boy leads."

The magistrate said, while he was interested in the rehabilitation of the youth, he was also concerned with the protection of society. He added the probation report was not favorable.

He remanded deWolfe to Feb. 7 for further probation studies before sentence.

500 Victorians Hear Science of Peace

A plan to set scientists searching for the road to a lasting peace was unfolded in S. J. Willis Junior High School last night by Dr. Norman Alcock, founder of the Peace Research Institute.

Almost 500 anxious Victorians, young mothers with babies, serious teenagers with notebooks and veterans of most recent wars, paid careful heed to Dr. Alcock's plan for peace.

"The problem is one of changing basic habits and human attitudes. We have considerable confidence in science," he claimed.

Dr. Alcock vigorously disputed the argument the very power of our modern weapons will effectively prohibit their use. He agreed small "atomic wars" had been fought without atomic weapons, but emphasized this did not preclude the possibility of accidental use.

"The problem is one of changing basic habits and human attitudes. We have considerable confidence in science," he claimed.

Suggested avenues for research would be study of unilateral and bilateral disarmament, role of nuclear weapons in defence of secondary powers, the potent economic ramifications of disarmament, prevention of accidental war, and study of a form of supra-national authority or international governing body.

Two Budgets Jump

School Bills Over Million In Both Sooke, Saanich

By IAN STREET

The 1962 school budgets for both Sooke and Saanich show a healthy increase over last year.

Trustees in Sooke approved spending of $1,023,886 this year, an increase of $67,132 over 1961.

In Saanich, the school board set its budget sights at $1,107,119—up $82,043.

Bowlers Getting City Help

City officials are studying a contract with the Canadian Pacific Railway to see if help can be given to the CPR Lawn Bowling Club which otherwise will lose its clubhouse this month.

City finance committee ordered the study this week after hearing a delegation from the bowling club.

The club has been ordered by the CPR to vacate a room in the Crystal Garden building to make way for an expansion of a wax museum.

Club spokesmen asked the city to arrange to have the land containing eight bowling greens leased to the club. The CPR lease on the city-owned land extends until 1964.

Officials in both districts could give no indication of the tax load to be borne by the ratepayers. Unknown factors at the moment are the new grant schedule and the basic mill rate, both to be fixed by the provincial government in April.

OLD COMPLAINT

John S. Williams, chairman of Sooke school board, said he had "an old complaint" concerning assessments in the district, which are kept secret by the government.

"As a result, the board is forced to work in the dark when setting up a budget," said Mr. Williams.

ONLY SOURCE

The provincial government which administers the unorganized territories in School District 63 has turned down all school board requests for assessment totals at budget time. There is no other source of information.

Since 1958 the schools mill rate in the district has jumped from just over 12 mills to more than 20 mills.

RISE JUMP

"This together with sizable increases in assessment has brought a tremendous jump in school taxes," said the chairman.

Sooke school board is now facing the prospect of removal from district assessment rolls of the entire B.C. Electric generating station at Jordan River.

A few years ago, before the BCE was taken over by the crown, a slash in assessments made without warning throw a heavy tax load on residential property owners in the district.

It is the first year that Sooke schools have cost over the $1,000,000 mark.

Saanich is anticipating hiring a half a dozen new teachers in September to take care of an expected eight per cent increase in enrolment.

Sooke, which expects a slightly higher percentage increase, has made provision for four new teachers. Salary increases for teachers don't add up to a significant amount.

The official naval inquiry into the Callam Bay incident is expected to complete hearing of evidence at HMC Dockyard in Esquimalt sometime Monday, a Pacific Command spokesman said last night.

Several anti-aircraft practice shells, fired from HMCS Skeena, exploded over the small Washington town last Monday. Findings of the inquiry will go to naval headquarters, Ottawa.

Even Remote Hong Kong Told of Beautiful B.C.

THE MYSTERIOUS EAST:

Working his way around the world these days is Brent Westwood, the 21-year-old son of Western Minister Earle Westwood.

Brent was in Hong Kong recently—as a matter of fact he celebrated his 21st birthday there—and while there found a little bookshop at the end of a narrow, little, out-of-the-way alley.

On sale in the bookshop... copies of Beautiful B.C.—the magazine put out by his father's department.

"I couldn't have put it better myself," said Mr. Smith.

CORRIDOR SEEN: Strange how political views can change...

Spotted peeping into Opposition Leader Robert Strachan's office the other day was Bruce Robertson, president of B.C. Power Corporation.

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

SOFT TOUCHES: Victoria's Sacred Dens Smith said the Liberals were so ashamed of their past performance they were now going around the country-side proclaiming the birth of the "New" Liberal Party.

"Nonsense!" exploded Liberal leader Mr. Pearson.

The government benches roared in glee.

"I couldn't have put it better myself," said Mr. Smith.

CORRIDOR SEEN: Strange how political views can change...

Spotted peeping into Opposition Leader Robert Strachan's office the other day was Bruce Robertson, president of B.C. Power Corporation.

tion and former parent firm of the B.C. Electric.

Four years the CCF had urged the takeover of the B.C.E.

Now that it's become an established fact, Mr. Robertson is trying to enlist Mr. Strachan's aid in getting the government to give stockholders a better financial deal.

OOPS, WRONG PARTY: A woman sitting in the public galleries looked down in awe as Gordon Gibson, the millionaire North Vancouver Liberal, thundered through his speech the other evening.

Finally her curiosity came to the fore.

"Can you tell me," she asked the person sitting alongside her, "is that Tommy Douglas?"

STRANGE NATIVE CUSTOM: A city woman wanted to know a little more about our native B.C. Indians as she went down to the public library to read up on the subject.

It was easy to find books on East Indians, Australian aborigines, Africans and the like, but native B.C. Indians couldn't be found for love nor money.

Finally a few dusty volumes were found on a back shelf.

SHELL SHOCK: Government photographer Bernie Atkins has been shooting a movie on safety procedures.

The other day he spent quite a while taking footage to show the dangers people run when they pick up strange objects such as unexploded shells.

So what did he find in his own backyard that very night?

An unexploded shell! Bernie knew exactly what to do. He called in the RCMP demolition team, smartly!

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Readers: I'm often asked if I make up letters. The answer is no. Made up letters would be pale indeed compared with the mail that crosses my desk every day.

I'm also asked if I change the letters much. The answer is, very little. However, most letters must be cut for reasons of space. Others must be lauded, or the grammar corrected.

Once in a blue moon I come across a letter which can be printed exactly as it was written—without changing or omitting a word. I'm printing such a letter today.

Although this letter runs longer than most which are used in the column I'm printing it in its entirety because it deals with so many familiar complaints—complaints which destroy modern marriages. This letter reflects life as it is lived by too many people. Here it is:

Dear Ann Landers: Your new book, "Since You Ask Me," is terrific. Every chapter has something valuable in it. I'm saving it for my 9-year-old daughter to read in a couple of years. If I had read it when I was 11 my life might have been different.

Boys were never a problem until I met B. It was the same old garbage—"love at first sight." Within a month we were having an affair. I was only 13. Five months later I was pregnant. I had a "premature" child at 16.

I'm 25 now and my social calendar reads like this: Three drive-in movies with our two kids.

I admit I'm a lousy housekeeper but there's so much to do I can't get organized. I'm a lousy mother, too, but we can't afford sitters very often, so I'm with the kids too much. They must be sick of the sight of me.

When a good friend of B's met me for the first time he said, "I've known this guy for seven years and I never knew he was married." That did it. I tried a separation but I was too spineless to see it through.

New Year's Eve B went out "for a cigarette" after supper. He came home the next morning at 8:30 a.m. He ran into a buddy and they went to a party. No—I wouldn't have gone along if I had been invited. His friends are a bunch of creeps—like the morose I ran with 11 years ago. All they talk about is poker winnings and bowling averages.

Of course I could tell them what floor was given the best shine, or that we have a new mailman—but who cares? So, I'm 25 and I've missed it all—education, fun, freedom, and a chance for self-respect. Sure, I have happy moments. When the kids are asleep I sit in the dark with my crutch—a bottle—and escape into a world of dreams.

When I read "Since You Ask Me" I kept saying, "How true! I wish I'd known all this earlier." So, Ann Landers, you didn't ask me, but I told you anyway. Now, back to my booze, and a world I never made—L.A.

Dear L.A.: I'm pleased that you liked my book but it's curious that you failed to relate Chapter Fourteen to yourself. It is called "The Battle Of The Bottle."

No woman of 25 has the right to drown herself in a sea of alcohol. It's a crime that a young wife and mother would throw in the sponge and make like a statue of What's The Use.

Get back to page 166 and start reading. Life needn't be an enemy. It can be a friend. But you must be willing to stand on your two feet and meet it face to face.

Leslie Fay Originals, left, use silky Arnel surah to create this handsome ensemble especially designed for fashionable women who are five feet five inches or less. It is a costume that goes with ease from chairing a meeting to dining by candlelight. It can be dry-cleaned, or washed by machine or hand. Klever Klad of Toronto uses Arnel surah, right, in bold brush strokes of black and white to create a dramatic shirtwaist for special occasions.

New Print Styles Herald Spring

Fashion forecasts of new color excitement are dramatically confirmed by the appearance of the first spring print styles. Always heralds of trends coming up, this year's array presents a color extravaganza of silk-like fabrics.

Print patterns are varied and range from soft brushed and finely etched effects to splashy abstracts which heighten the silk-like look. Vibrant use of color is the main theme however whether it is in rich jewel tones or startling black and white.

A brand new Canadian fabric which is proving a star performer among the new styles is Arnel surah, which combines beauty with previously unheard-of practical talents. That "must-have-now" print dress will really brighten the winter wardrobe and carry on through the year when it is Arnel surah because this lustrous, wrinkle-shedding fabric is easy to wash. It is also permanently pleatable and, if trimming makes it necessary, will dry clean beautifully. The styling possibilities of the new fabric are shown in the variety of designs being made with it now. There are many new versions of the perennially popular shirtwaist but there are also slim skirted blouses, and many styles with the pleats and fluid flounces on the fuller, softer lines of developing spring fashion trends.

Newsworthy is the new "twist" style, a sheath dress in which the Arnel surah is finely pleated from shoulder to thigh, ending in a gay flounce.

Designed as a year-round luxury fabric, the Arnel surah is making its debut in spring prints in all sizes ranges from women's half-sizes to junior petites. Canadian designers have been generous in their praise of this beautiful fabric and special prints for blouses and summer dresses will be seen shortly.

Royal Academy of Dancing Offers Canadian Scholarship

Mr. Leonard Crainford, its chairman in Canada, is pleased to announce that the Royal Academy of Dancing is offering a scholarship for girls to the value of £285 to a Canadian dancer for supplementary training in England for the period of one year.

The scholarship has been made possible by a donation received from Dame Ninette de Valois, the internationally famous director of the Royal Ballet Company, who has agreed that the scholar shall have opportunity to receive some training at The Royal Ballet School in London, which was founded by Dame Ninette and which remains under her personal supervision.

In addition to the above sum, a contribution of $235 will be made towards the dancer's travelling expenses to England. This contribution has been made possible by the donation of television fees received in Canada by Dame Margot Fonteyn, president of the Royal Academy of Dancing, and by Miss Louise Goldsmith, a Royal Academy teacher in Toronto.

The aim of the scholarship is to give a young girl dancer the chance to travel to England for further study and then return to Canada, thus bringing home the experience gained overseas.

The selection of a candidate for the scholarship will be made by Miss Olga Cooper, a Major Examiner of The Royal Academy of Dancing, as she tours across Canada during March and April of this year. This decision will be subject to the approval of the Scholarship Committee in London before it becomes effective.

Closing date for entries is March 1, 1962.

Miss Olga Cooper, during her trip, will also audition and report on male dancers who have entered for the Peter Cheetham Scholarship; the establishment of which was announced by Dame Margot

Fonteyn during her visit to Toronto last year. The scholarship has been made possible by the donation of $500 by Mr. Peter Cheetham of Toronto. The announcement of the winners of the two scholarships will be made at the end of June or before.

DICTATE
must shop?

Some people believe in banning things. Some people believe in dictating to others. For their own good of course! Most of us think, however, that people should be left as free as possible to make their own choices.

Women have been pushed around throughout history. We, in this country, are usually proud that our women have attained a great deal of freedom. Are we going to start taking it away? If women don't want "Gift" stamps they won't take them. If they don't like what one store does, they'll go to another. Right now women dictate shopping policy. Shouldn't we leave it that way?

Artists, Poets, Musicians All Working for Peace

Mrs. Arthur L. Kobler of Seattle is a woman who is dedicating herself to working for world peace. And since she has become actively engaged in working for an alternative to war she has become a much happier person.

Mrs. Kobler, accompanied her husband, Dr. Kobler, a Ph.D. in psychology, to Victoria on Friday afternoon. Dr. Kobler was a speaker at a meeting of the Peace Research Institute last evening in the S. J. Willis High School.

Both members of the United World Federalist movement, they will attend the annual meeting of the federalists here this evening when the speaker will be William M. Sheehan, Montreal, president of the Canadian group.

Mrs. Kobler who has always been interested in movements for peace became more than interested last summer. She went into action.

An artist in her own right, Mrs. Kobler has staged one man exhibits of her oil abstract figures every year or two. Last year she was instrumental in getting together a group of well-known artists, over 60 of them, to stage a show.

And the proceeds of $3,200 are going toward the establishment of a Peace Information Centre in downtown Seattle. It will be in operation for the Seattle Century 21 Fair.

To show how an idea can "catch on" the poets of Seattle have gone to work to produce a show of their own. They are publishing a book, hand pressed, including works by Theodore Roethlis, Pulitzer prize winner.

Next in line will be the musicians who are right now planning some project to raise funds for the "Turn Towards Peace" project.

Mrs. Kobler says she is both amazed and pleased by the way women all across the country have come forward to voice their belief that peace in the world is possible. If people will work toward that goal.

"Fall but shelters are no answer at all to problems facing the world," says Mrs. Kobler. "Shelters are an acceptance of war and I am definitely against that idea, she added.

The object of the Peace centre to be established in

MRS. KOBLER

Seattle is to inform the general public with the intention of turning back "this mad armed race." A disarmed world under law is the ultimate aim.

The Koblers who live near the University in Seattle have a seven-year-old daughter, Temple. And she is saving her pennies to help with the peace movement.

CGIT Parties Successful

Members of the Canadian Girls in Training were hostesses at a successful coffee party and tea held recently in the Douglas Room of the Hudson's Bay Company store.

Miss L. Butler and Mrs. T. Cooper, chairman of the board, assisted by Miss W. Ripley received the guests.

The coffee party was arranged by First United Church CGIT under the direction of Mrs. C. W. Callan, CGIT superintendent. Girls acted as servers.

Miss Gladys Beall spoke briefly at the morning affair Mrs. J. Stephen and Mrs. A. Hall, assisted by Mrs. J. Owen. Equi-malt superintendent, were in charge of the tea arrangements.

Presiding at the tea tables were Mrs. W. Freeman, Mrs. George Guy, Mrs. G. Scott, Mrs. E. Bewell, Mrs. W. Anderson, Mrs. F. Holdridge, Mrs. Doris Macfarlane and Miss Minnie Beveridge.

Table decorations were made by CGIT members and leaders of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Antique Doll Chairs Go for $40 at Sale

Donations to the Art Gallery's annual rummage sale and "treasure" auction were labelled as "fantastic" by Women's Committee convenor, Mrs. William McIntyre yesterday as she stood and surveyed the scene.

Hundreds surged through the gallery and by 5 p.m. in the evening ladies of the committee who had been selling their wares since 10 a.m., were limp. Tables and counters were still fairly full.

Mr. Colin Graham, curator of the gallery, and Mrs. McIntyre agreed they had never seen so many donations. Tables were piled high with hats, children's clothing, books, pictures, adult wear. There were at least 100 pair of shoes for sale, and among odder items, three pair of women's corsets.

Big event of the day, was the treasure auction.

Here again, there was an incredible number of items. About the highest price of the day was fetched by two antique doll's chairs. Standing 15 inches high, they were made in New Brunswick over 100 years ago. They went for $40.

Two fur cages and two fur jackets were donated. A grey squirrel-jacket went for $5 and a white rabbit jacket, sold for $6.

One spectator, an art authority, was aghast to see Margaret Peterson's black and orange tempera painting auction at $9. "It's worth a hundred," she said.

An unknown artist's twilight sea- and waterfront scene, fetched $3.50.

A hand-embroidered Canton shawl in black and white—big enough to cover a grand piano, sold for $3.

Mr. Will Lund, auctioneer expressed his shock to see a golfing and six clubs go for $6. "One iron alone, new, retails at $27," he reminded the gallery. It still went at $6.

A violin case, violin and bow, looking as new, sold for $5. A better price, $22 was paid for a pearl-handled silver fruit set in a mahogany case.

"All our articles are donated, and we feel the proceeds from the auction to be of great value to the gallery," said Mrs. R. S. Conn, auction convenor.

Total proceeds from the auction were over $400.

Rummage proceeds were not available, but last year the affair made $1,000 in total.

Helping Mrs. McIntyre as rummage convenors were Mrs. D. Tuck, Mrs. D. Willis, Mrs. W. Osborne, Mrs. F. Slaney, Mrs. E. Hadfield, Mrs. H. Turner, Mrs. V. G. Southcott, Mrs. Ina Unthoff, Mrs. W. R. G. Wenman and Mrs. J. Parker.

Taxes May Shut Down Shipyard

McKay-Cormack Ltd. shipyard may have to close down because of high taxes, says George Vercas, managing director of the company, in a report to pay higher taxes. "It is a fact we cannot afford to pay higher taxes," he said. "The company's land is assessed at 100 per cent in excess of the value of the land when it was purchased. The court of revision has refused to grant any reduction in the assessed value of the land. An appeal against the 900 assessment placed on the YVCA building in the Capl. Vercas area is now in the court. The assessment on a duplex house and $2,240 for the land. An appeal against the assessed value placed on his home and won reductions on the three properties it took before the Royal Trust Company, which was successful in the appeal. ## Harder Line Army Forces Argentina To Slap Cuba

President Arturo Frondizi bowed to military pressure Friday night and agreed to reverse the soft stand Argentina took toward Cuba at the Punta del Este conference.

While apparently preparing for a full diplomatic break with the Fidel Castro regime, Frondizi announced after a long meeting with his military chiefs that his government will "comply with all resolutions adopted at Punta del Este."

READY FOR ACTION

The meeting was held amid reports that the armed force heads had ordered their forces to stand by for possible action against the Frondizi government.

The military leaders had handed Frondizi an ultimatum demanding an immediate break with Cuba and the resignation of Foreign Minister Miguel Angel Canciano, who headed the Argentine delegation at the inter-American conference.

SOOTHED MILITARY

Informants said the president—who has survived past military and other crises—managed to soothe the armed forces chiefs by agreeing to go along with the full anti-Castro declaration approved at Punta del Este.

Tourist Bureau Cuts Feared In Banner Year

Money Crisis Mounts

By TED PULFORD

Despite indications that Vancouver Island is on the brink of its biggest tourist year, the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau's financial committee in a preliminary meeting yesterday, slashed the organization's 1962 budget by almost 10 per cent.

The committee chipped economies from a wide range of items in the budget before knocking it down to some $68,000—a drop of $8,000 from the 1961 budget of $76,000. Bureau president Ald. Austin Curtis said further meetings were slated and that the figure is not final. He declined comment on the proposed cuts "at this time."

MAYOR, REEVES
The committee comprise the bureau's board of directors, which includes the mayor of Victoria and representatives of the Greater Victoria municipalities.

Bureau officials, meanwhile, are facing a crisis from still another sector.

DEEP TROUBLE
Victoria's much-publicized Century 21 booth, designed to sell Vancouver Island to the millions attending the fair in Seattle beginning this spring, is in deep financial trouble.

The bureau earlier calculated that cost of renting the booth, staffing it and making available adequate literature would run to more than $52,000, and a separate fund was created.

HOPED TO RAISE
The provincial government has undertaken to pay up to $1,575 as a grant toward defraying cost of the literature.

The bureau had hoped to raise the balance from ferry carriers, private business and municipal grants.

POOR RESPONSE
Response to the bureau's plea to Vancouver Island member communities for money has been so bad that there isn't enough money on hand to pay for the booth staff's personal accommodations.

"I don't honestly know what to do," the anxious bureau commissioner, William Hawkins, said last night.

SHORT-SIGHTED
Other tourist promotion experts attacked the "short-sighted lethargy" being encountered in business and municipal circles alike.

"Surely," said one, "they must know that the biggest tourist year of them all is here. Without funds for the proper operation of our booth in Seattle, the Island is going to lose a fortune."

PUSHED BUDGETS
Other tourist bureaus within a day's travel from Seattle aren't working under the same handicaps. Most have pushed their budgets up as much as 200 per cent over last year.

"Somebody has got to make a move soon," Mr. Hawkins said. "Our Seattle booth can be the key to a regular flood of tourists to the Island this summer, but we must have the money now. Otherwise our entire program is in jeopardy."

Fateful Weekend

Armor Bristles In Paris

PARIS (Reuters) — A powerful armored force converged on the French capital Friday with orders to crush mercilessly any attempt to disrupt the government's peace plans for Algeria. The force included tanks, armored cars and reinforcements of riot police.

The security operation was being directed by Interior Minister Roger Frey who declared the government would be "pitiless against all those who try to destroy internal peace" during coming critical weeks while the outcome of Algerian peace negotiations hangs in the balance.

Frey said he did not expect a large-scale anti-government action by the outlawed European Secret Army Organization.

Elsewhere, a Conservative backbencher made a speech interpreted widely as a call for Macmillan's resignation.

The backbencher, Sir Harry Legge-Bourke, said that for men of the 67-year-old Macmillan's generation "the time is coming for you now to hand over the responsibilities to men whose fortune is not to have had to bear so many grievous years the burdens you have borne."

The rightmost attempt was expected to be timed to coincide with a broadcast by de Gaulle to the nation Monday.

To meet the threat, a security pattern has been drawn up to deploy the armored forces at radio stations, public buildings and the capital's main thoroughfares.

LIGHT TANKS

The force included 32 light tanks, about 70 light armored cars and an undisciplined number of heavy tanks.

Three hundred political prisoners shouting for a French Algeria rioted in Sante Prison.

Police said the prisoners refused to return to their cells after an exercise period, seized steel bars from their cells and battled for nearly an hour with guards and 10 truckloads of police rushed in to restore order.

Moslems on Rampage For 'Algerian Algeria'

ALGIERS (UPI) — French troops and gendarmes yesterday fired on a shouting crowd of thousands of Moslem demonstrators who surged through the east Algerian town of Mercier Lacombe, smashing doors of European sector houses to cries of "Algerian Algeria."

Police said three Moslem demonstrators were killed and three others wounded by the gunfire.

The clash brought the day's toll of violence throughout Algeria to at least 14 killed and 15 wounded. Since Jan. 1, 801 persons have been killed in Algerian violence and 1,030 wounded.

U.S. Plans Total Embargo

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy was reported Friday night to have decided to slap a total embargo on U.S. imports from Cuba.

The United States has been buying about $35,000,000 worth of Cuban products a year, mostly tobacco.

Informants said Kennedy's action will not end U.S. sales to Cuba, limited to food and medicine and amounting to some $15,000,000 a year.

Thetis Ferry Missing in Fog

A sea and land search was launched last night for a six-car, 28-passenger ferry lost in fog on a trip from Thetis Island to Chemainus.

The ferry left Freedy Harbor on Thetis Island at 4:45 p.m. and was scheduled to complete the four-mile voyage through sheltered waters in half an hour. Number aboard was not immediately known. Two passengers were identified as Richard Nixon and Mrs. Mary Duncan.

The 60-foot steel-hulled ferry was reported missing at 7:45 p.m., two-and-a-half hours after it was due at Chemainus. RCMP called air-sea rescue headquarters at Vancouver and a tug and a water taxi began the search. Police began checking the Vancouver Island shoreline along the ferry route in case it went aground in fog.

A heavy fog covered the area last night making it impossible for air force planes to join the search.

Four cars boarded the ferry at Freedy Harbor for the trip, last of five roundtrips made daily. There are no eating facilities or food supplies aboard the ferry, an official said.

Other surface craft, including RCMP patrol boats, were preparing to enter the search at press time.

Victoria Topped By Candle

Brilliantly floodlit and topped with a 30-foot "candle flame," the city water tower above Rockland Avenue will be the biggest single centennial decoration in Victoria.

Plans to turn the 100-foot tower into a giant birthday candle to mark the city's 100th anniversary were tested this week.

"It will be seen for miles," Rodrick Clark, chairman of the centennial decorations subcommittee, said last night.

Out of Food? Who Cares!

WINNIPEG (CP) — A little thing like running out of supplies is not a major problem to northern Manitoba Indians who know how to live off the country, an RCMP report indicated Friday.

Daniel Spence, 80, and Thompson Spence, and Zachary McDonald, both 30, left Nelson House Nov. 3 to hunt in the Gesser Lake area 90 miles north of Thompson, which is 400 miles north of Winnipeg. They were to return Christmas Day.

Earlier this week, the Indian agent at Nelson House advised RCMP the men had not returned.

A plane sent to Gesser Lake found the two Spences living on moose meat and fish. McDonald had gone to nearby South Indian Lake for supplies and was located on the trail.

The Spences, in good health, refused to be taken out by plane. With their food supplies replenished, they said they intended to rejoin the third man and finish the winter trapping.

Twice-Dead Doctor Loses Fight for Life

CLEVELAND (AP)

Dr. Jerome A. Stroom died Friday night—almost 128 hours after a doctor had pronounced him dead. The dentist had survived twice this week after his heart and breathing had stopped.

Dr. Stroom, 37, had been listed in critical condition since entering hospital Sunday. He never regained consciousness.

A doctor at the family home Sunday night carefully checked respiration, heartbeat and pulse, according to relatives, and pronounced Dr. Stroom dead.

British Battle Sabotage

LONDON (UPI) — The Admiralty yesterday reported the second case of apparent sabotage aboard a Royal Navy ship in the last three days.

TWO ARRESTED

Officials said two men under arrest at Portsmouth, where an attempt was made to flood key compartments of the 2,020-ton destroyer HMS Carron. The officials said they found smashed gauges and damaged wiring in the destroyer's operations room. The damage was considered minor, they said.

CARRIES HIT

Earlier this week, the Admiralty reported that detectives were investigating the apparently deliberate cutting of wires on board Britain's largest aircraft carrier, HMS Eagle, now undergoing repairs at Devonport.

Must Guilt Be Proven? Folklore, Says Lawyer

OTTAWA (CP) — The principle that a man is innocent until proven guilty was described as "folklore" yesterday by Toronto lawyer John Honsberger.

He said preliminary study has turned up 40 to 50 Ontario statutes that call for "reverse onus" in which a man charged with an offence is required to prove his innocence.

Mr. Honsberger said there are another 40 or 50 statutes that "put the lie" to the theory that a man's home is his castle.

Those acts allow a variety of inspectors and officials to enter a private home to search for something or other.

Mr. Honsberger was reporting to a panel at the annual meeting of the Ontario Bar Association. He is chairman of the association's civil liberties section.

The reverse-onus feature of some acts may be justified, he said. But it appeared that it was creeping into many statutes as legislative draftsmen found it "an easy thing to do."

Mothers March Tonight

PARKSVILLE — Mothers' march for $2,000 takes place in Qualicum school district at 8:30 tonight under direction of Parkville Kinema Club and chairman Bob Doughty.

Club has already realized $75 in a qqr wash, and Qualicum Beach Rotary Club will provide transportation.

Nanaimo mothers' march Thursday realized more than $3,000. Goal is $5,000 and store collections and business donations are still to come.

School Bill $2,610,000

NANAIMO — District school budget for this year has been set at $2,610,000, an increase of $150,000 from 1961.

The board cut $80,000 from the preliminary budget announced a week ago. Most of the increase, $116,185, is for teachers' salaries.

DUNCAN — A woman driver charged with failing to stop on approaching a stationary school bus on the Trans-Canada Highway Jan. 5 was acquitted yesterday when the court ruled the Crown had failed to introduce sufficient evidence.

Mrs. Dorothy Castle of Duncan was charged following an accident which sent seven-year-old Richard Dupont to hospital with extensive head injuries.

Magistrate D. K. McAdam ruled the prosecution had failed to introduce certain evidence essential to the charge.

EVIDENCE NEEDED

Conviction requires evidence to show an offence took place outside of a business or residential district, the bus was a properly designated school bus, it was stopped on a highway and a signal was displayed indicating the bus was loading or discharging children.

The magistrate said no evidence had been introduced to show the private school bus was properly designated as such, or the accident took place outside a business or residential district.

STILL OPERATING

A police constable told court he questioned the woman shortly after the accident, asking if she had stopped, and Mrs. Castle answered: "I didn't realize I had to stop."

Bus driver Michael Dwyer of Duncan told court that while the last child left the bus he noticed the oncoming car.

He said: "I assumed from the speed it would not stop. I watched the progress of the vehicle and saw how it struck the child."

FAILED TO SHOW

Also acquitted for lack of vital evidence was bus driver Dwyer, who was charged with stopping the school bus on the highway when it was possible to pull off the travelled portion of the road.

Magistrate McAdam ruled the Crown failed to show it was possible to pull off the road at the spot where the accident took place.

Mac-Powell Answer All Right with Mayors

PORT ALBERNI — Assurance that everything possible is being done to alleviate a flyash nuisance here was given by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. president Ernest Shorter to Mayor L. K. Jordan and Alberni's Mayor Fred Bishop.

A consulting engineer was in the city Thursday when boilers were shut down for the purpose of checking equipment, said Mr. Shorter.

IN OUR POWER
"The company is certainly aware of the situation and we are doing everything in our power to alleviate it."

He pointed out that in the past few years the firm has been able to eliminate waste burners entirely from its local sawmills, and has installed special cinder collectors on all powerhouse stacks in the valley. These units are designed to remove almost all the solids from the smoke.

PERSONAL INTEREST

Mr. Shorter said the company has its engineers investigating all aspects of the problem to see if any equipment has not been functioning properly in recent weeks and he would continue to take a personal interest in the matter.

Expanded facilities and new equipment to be installed during the expansion program at the pulp and paper division will help to alleviate the condition, Mr. Shorter added.

Both mayors said they were satisfied the company was doing its best to overcome the condition.

Mayor Jordan said he realized the situation cannot be cleared up overnight.

Port Alberni council was the first to lodge a strong protest against the pollution. Alberni council also asked to be informed of what action was being taken by the company.

Ease Traffic Torture, Bus Drivers Ask City

Victoria bus drivers yesterday sent city council a six-point program aimed at alleviating "extremely trying traffic conditions" in the downtown area.

The six points, covering double parking, mid-block

crosswalks, the Douglas-Fort intersection and bus zones, were explained in a letter from Local 109 of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America.

The local included B.C. Electric bus drivers and drivers for other bus services in Greater Victoria. The points:

- Double parking is a common practice in Victoria, particularly on Fort Street, and appears to be on the increase.

- Crosswalks are extremely hazardous because vehicles, parked and double-parked, hide crosswalks from drivers of oncoming vehicles.
- A "scramble" traffic light would make it easier to make left turns from Douglas to Fort and right turns from Fort to Douglas.

- Bus zones are not long enough for the number of buses scheduled for certain times during the day—at dusk, the most hazardous driving time, buses are forced to double-park.

- Bus zones should be strictly policed to prevent parking of other vehicles in the zones.
- Signs in bus zones should be changed to read "No Stopping." At present some bus zone signs read "No Parking."

The "scramble" light called for at Fort and Douglas is the type installed at Hillside and Stanhart and other city intersections.

These lights are set so traffic coming from one direction can move about 10 seconds before oncoming traffic from the opposite direction.

"... We would request that steps be taken toward their alleviation," the letter says.

Merger Study

Mayor Gives Reason

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Fire and police services are two major reasons why Oak Bay and Esquimalt should be included in a government-ordered study of intermunicipal government, Mayor R. B. Wilson said last night.

He was commenting on city council's recent decision to ask the provincial government to order a study of the Greater Victoria area with compulsory participation by Oak Bay and Esquimalt municipalities.

The decision has been protested in a strongly-worded joint statement issued by Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils after a secret meeting.

"WHY NO AFRAID?"

"I find it difficult to understand why Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils are so afraid of a study under the Municipal Act," Mayor Wilson said.

"I don't know what the answer will be. I am inclined to think, at the moment, with the knowledge available, that amalgamation might be the more sensible solution."

ASKED FOR STUDY

Mayor Wilson said city council has asked for a government-ordered study under a section of the Municipal Act dealing with metropolitan government because the amalgamation section does not include provision for a full government study.

"The Minister of Municipal Affairs has wide discretionary powers under sections 765 and 766 of the Act (dealing with metropolitan government and the compulsory study).

ONLY DIFFERENCE

"The only difference is in when you come to the report. If it indicates merger, then the minister has discretionary powers to call for a vote.

"If the report is for amalgamation, it is entirely up to the municipalities whether they vote on it or not."

Early Spring Due Says Groundhog

Victoria's own groundhog traditionally emerged from its home early yesterday morning but in vain searched the ground for its shadow.

Due to an overcast day and mist, no shadow was cast and this means an early spring, according to legend.

As far as temperatures are concerned the weatherman will agree—for the next two days at least.

Today's high is expected to be 50 degrees. According to the old story, if the groundhog sees its shadow on Feb. 2, another six weeks of winter is due.

No Hasty Decision On Home

Mayor R. B. Wilson said last night there will be no hasty decision on whether the city-financed Mountain View Home for elderly men will be closed.

"It's a matter of resolving the financial and humanitarian aspects of it. The city is conscious of its responsibility to these men so we won't take quick action on it," he said.

The mayor visited the home yesterday, along with Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson and city welfare administrator William Hooson. He said last night the home lost $22,000 last year, it needs rewiring and "it's running about half-full, with 28 men."

"It's a question of finding suitable or better facilities elsewhere at less cost," said the mayor.

Pioneers Guests

A congregational banquet at First United Church Fellowship Hall at 6:30 p.m. Monday will honor church pioneers in one of the highlights of the church's centennial celebration.

Congregation old-timers, some of them members since before the turn of the century, are expected to attend and share in the celebration with relative newcomers.

Victim Warned About Perjury

Fight Over Pinball Winnings Real Cause of City Holdup?

Illegal Machine Hit In Youth's Defence

By ED COSGROVE

A youth charged with robbery with violence said in court yesterday his "victim" told him to take the money during a fight over pinball machine winnings.

Lloyd Keith deWolfe, 18, of 1018 Balmoral, who admitted the pop-bottle holdup of the City Hall News Stand Jan. 23, testified under protection of the Canada Evidence Act.

Defence counsel W. Berkeley Monteith at one point warned robbery victim Ben Hall, 235 Cook, of the penalties of perjury during cross-examination.

Mr. Monteith called Mr. Hall and other witnesses to back his claim of mitigating circumstances against a prison term for deWolfe.

The prosecution has alleged deWolfe waited until customers left the news stand then, while threatening Mr. Hall with a pop bottle, punched the till and stole $81.

deWolfe said he had been playing the pinball machine for some time, putting in $5 worth of nickels and scoring 800 free games.

Score Wiped Out

He said he went to the washroom and, when he returned, his score was wiped out. He said he lost his temper, grabbed a pop bottle and demanded his money back from Hall.

"He said 'the till is open' (and told me) to take all the money."

deWolfe admitted winning money at the newsstand two previous times.

Both he and a companion made the admission under protection of the Canada Evidence Act.

Mr. Monteith called Mr. Hall

evasive and unco-operative on points of evidence, particularly dealing with operation of the pinball machine.

Mr. Hall admitted paying off players using the pinball machine. He said he "may have" paid off deWolfe at one time.

"Did he not... demand the return of his money?" Mr. Hall was asked.

"... Yes, he did not," later, Mr. Monteith said: "I suggest the witness Hall was not telling the truth... it is obvious the stand is operating an illegal gambling device—a sucker trap for youngsters of this age."

'Small Wonder'

"... I am not here to prosecute Hall... but the circumstances are such that extreme mitigation is called for... it is small wonder he (deWolfe) lost his temper."

He termed the defendant a "lad who is not too bright," and said the incident arose from a "fit of rage, not a desire to acquire a lot of money."

Operation of the machine he termed a "vicious situation... not only an illegal device, but... dishonestly run."

"It would be a very terrible thing for this immature lad to be sent to the penitentiary for this extremely serious offence... there is salvageable material in this lad."

Magistrate Oatley said he held no brief with the operation of gaming machines, but this "is just another and commentary on the type of life this boy leads."

The magistrate said, while he was interested in the rehabilitation of the youth, he was also concerned with the protection of society. He added the probation report was not favorable.

He remanded deWolfe to Feb. 7 for further probation studies before sentence.

Teen-Agers, Veterans

500 Victorians Hear Science of Peace

A plan to set adolescents searching for the road to a lasting peace was unfolded last night by Dr. Norman Alcock, founder of the Peace Research Institute.

Almost 500 anxious Victorians, young mothers with babies, serious teen-agers with notebooks and veterans of most recent wars, paid careful heed to Dr. Alcock's plan for peace.

SEEK ALTERNATIVES

"The Peace Research Institute will apply scientific disciplines to seeking out the alternatives to war," he said.

"The hydrogen bomb has made war obsolete; a last resort utterly incompatible with our society."

Despite the highly vocal lip service paid to war's obsolescence, Dr. Alcock pointed out that preparations for armed, nuclear conflict are proceeding unabated.

"We acknowledge the possibility of war by our actions," he claimed, "we spend money on weapons and defence 3,000 times faster than we do on planning for peace."

Dr. Alcock vigorously disputed the argument the very power of our modern weapons will effectively prohibit their use. He agreed small "atomic wars" had been fought without atomic weapons, but emphasized this did not preclude the possibility of accidental use.

IN DEFENCE

Suggested avenues for research would be study of unilateral and bilateral disarmament, role of nuclear weapons in defence of secondary powers, the potential economic ramifications of disarmament, prevention of accidental war, and study of a form of international authority or international governing body.

It was easy to find books on East Indians, Australian aborigines, Africans and the like, but native B.C. Indians couldn't be found for love nor money.

Finally a few dusty volumes were found on a back shelf.

SHILLI, SHOCK! Government photographer Bruce Atkins has been shooting a movie on safety procedures.

The other day he spent quite a while taking footage to show the dangers people run when they pick up strange objects such as unexploded ordnance.

So what did he find in his own backyard that very night?

An unexploded shell! Bruce knew exactly what to do. He called in the RCMP demolition team, smartly!

Even Remote Hong Kong Told of Beautiful B.C.

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

THE MYSTERIOUS EAST: Working his way around the world these days is Brent Westwood, the 21-year-old son of Recreation Minister Earl Westwood.

Brent was in Hong Kong recently—as a matter of fact he celebrated his 21st birthday there—and while there found a little bookshop at the end of a narrow, little, out-of-the-way alley.

At one time yesterday only 11 of the 31 Social Credit M.L.A.s and 14 of the 19 opposition members were present, including the speaker of the moment, David Barrett (NDP-CCF—Dewdney).

SOFT TOUCHES: Victoria's Sacred Don Smith said the Liberals were so ashamed of their past performance they were now going around the countryside proclaiming the birth of the "New" Liberal Party.

"Nonsense!" exploded Liberal leader Ray Farnham.

The government benches roared in glee.

"I couldn't have put it better myself," said Mr. Smith.

FERRY LOST NINE HOURS

THETIS ISLAND FERRY ETHEL HUNTER

Thetis Ship Found Tangled in Logs

Fog-wreathed Stuart Channel 50 miles north of Victoria early this morning concealed the mystery of the missing Thetis Island Ferry Ethel Hunter with eight persons aboard.

Up to press time the B.C. highways department vessel was more than nine hours overdue on a half-hour run which was to have taken it from Preedy Harbor to the industrial town of Chemainus.

Search and rescue officials were mounting a full-scale search of the area and by midnight three radar-equipped tugs were scouring the channel.

FOG BLANKET

The ferry left Preedy Harbor at 4:45 p.m. carrying five passengers, four cars and a crew of two.

Air search of the reef-infested shores of Stuart Channel was prevented up to 1 a.m. today by a heavy blanket of

BULLETIN

The vessel was found by the search tug Raven Hill at 1:22 a.m. only 1/2 mile north of the berthing dock.

The skipper apparently lost his way in the fog and nearly went aground at Kinsmen Beach. When he went astern the ferry tangled in a log boom.

At Sea Island Airport an RCAF rescue craft was standing by with engines warming in the hope the weather would clear.

At the helm when the ferry left on the first leg of her second-to-last round trip of the day was a relief skipper who had been about a week on the run.

"We're terribly concerned," said Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi at 1 a.m. from Vancouver.

He said he had asked the RCAF to do "everything it possibly can."

CITY SKIPPER
"There's nothing we can do except sit and wait," he said.

Reported on board the ferry were Capt. C. W. Croft of Victoria, her master; engineer Leo McAtstocker of Thetis Island, and passengers Mr. and Mrs. G. Richard Nixon and Mrs. Mary Duncan, all of the marine medical mission on Thetis Island. A Vancouver Island station wagon was among the vehicles on board but it was not known who was with it.

MYSTERY GROWS
Mystery of the missing ferry deepened at 1:15 a.m. when the Colonist's Chemainus correspondent, Mrs. M. B. Robinson, said visibility had improved and that the lights of Thetis Island could be seen from Chemainus Harbor.

Mrs. Robinson had been for more than an hour on board one of the search vessels and said that visibility in much of the area was good.

Capt. M. C. Clulow, of Thetis Island, one of the Ethel Hunter's regular skippers for the past three years, speculated that the relief captain had merely dropped anchor near Chemainus to await improved visibility.

EQUIPMENT
The steel-hulled ferry carried a 16-foot lifeboat, several life rafts and more than enough lifejackets for her normal accommodation of 38 passengers, he said.

One woman who got tired of waiting for the ferry on the Chemainus end hired a water taxi which got lost three times in the same fog which concealed the fate of the overdue ferry.

She said its skipper found Thetis on the fourth attempt after once turning back.

Capt. Clulow said the ferry had a foghorn which could have been heard for a distance of two miles. It also had a bell which was supposed to be rung at one minute intervals if the vessel was lying at anchor in a fog, he said.

But searchers reported hearing no signals.

FERRY SEEN
Alan, 13, and Dennis, 15, Beddows reported seeing the ferry at about 5:30 p.m. about 75 to 100 feet off Hospital Rock coming into harbor. They saw a man on deck and were about to call that the ferry was too close to shore when it suddenly stopped — and reversed into the fog.

Thetis Island residents said they started searching along the shoreline at 6:30 p.m., covering about six miles by foot and car and "blowing horns and flashing lights."

Most said they weren't too concerned over the fate of the vessel. They believed it would drop anchor in the fog and await better visibility.

Fronidizi Bows To Army

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—President Arturo Frondizi bowed to military pressure Friday night and agreed to reverse the soft stand Argentina took toward Cuba at the Punta del Este conference.

While apparently preparing for a full diplomatic break with the Fidel Castro regime, Frondizi announced after a long meeting with his military chiefs that his government will "comply with all resolutions adopted at Punta del Este."

READY FOR ACTION

The meeting was held amid reports that the armed forces had ordered their forces to stand by for possible action against the Frondizi government.

The military leaders had handed Frondizi an ultimatum demanding an immediate break with Cuba and the resignation of Foreign Minister Miguel Angel Carcano, who headed the Argentine delegation at the inter-American conference.

U.S. Plans Total Embargo

WASHINGTON (AP)—

President Kennedy was reported Friday night to have decided to slap a total embargo on U.S. imports from Cuba.

The United States has been buying about $35,000,000 worth of Cuban products a year, mostly tobacco.

Informants said Kennedy's action will not end U.S. sales to Cuba, limited to food and medicine and amounting to some $15,000,000 a year.

Fateful Weekend

Armor Bristles In Paris

PARIS (Reuters)—A powerful armored force converged on the French capital Friday with orders to crush mercilessly any attempt to disrupt the government's peace plans for Algeria. The force included tanks, armored cars and reinforcements of riot police.

The security operation was being directed by Interior Minister Roger Frey who declared the government would be "pitiless against all those who try to destroy internal peace" during coming critical weeks while the outcome of Algerian peace negotiations hangs in the balance.

SUCH FANATICS

Frey said he did not expect a large-scale anti-government action by the outlawed European Secret Army Organization, which is bitterly opposed to President de Gaulle's plans for an independent Algeria.

But he said "we are dealing with such fanatics that I do not exclude a very limited attempt at disorder."

TALK MONDAY

The rightist attempt was expected to be timed to coincide with a broadcast by de Gaulle to the nation Monday.

To meet the threat, a security pattern has been drawn up to deploy the armored force at radio stations, public buildings and the capital's main thoroughfares.

LIGHT TANKS

The force included 32 fast, light tanks, about 70 light armored cars and an undisclosed number of heavy tanks.

Three hundred political prisoners shouting for a French Algeria rioted in Sante Prison.

Police said the prisoners refused to return to their cells after an exercise period, seized steel bars from their cots and battled for nearly an hour with guards and 10 truckloads of police rushed in to restore order.

Tourist Bureau Cuts Feared

By TED PULFORD

Despite indications that Vancouver Island is on the brink of its biggest tourist year, the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau's financial committee, in a preliminary meeting yesterday, slashed the organization's 1962 budget by almost 10 per cent.

The committee chipped economies from a wide range of items in the budget before knocking it down to some $68,000—a drop of $8,000 from the 1961 budget of $76,000.

Bureau president Ald. Austin Curtis said further meetings were slated and that the figure is not final. He declined comment on the proposed cuts "at this time."

MAYOR, HEEVES

The committee comprise the bureau's board of directors, which includes the mayor of Victoria and reeves of the Greater Victoria municipalities.

Bureau officials, meanwhile, are facing a crisis from still another sector.

DEEP TROUBLE

Victoria's much-publicized Century 21 booth, designed to sell Vancouver Island to the millions attending the fair in Seattle beginning this spring, is in deep financial trouble.

The bureau earlier calculated that cost of renting the booth, staffing it and making available adequate literature would run to more than $52,000, and a separate fund was created.

HOPED TO RAISE

The provincial government has undertaken to pay up to $1,875 as a grant toward defraying cost of the literature. The bureau had hoped to raise the balance from ferry carriers, private business and municipal grants.

POOR RESPONSE

Response to the bureau's pleas to Vancouver Island member communities for money has been so bad that there isn't enough money on hand to pay for the booth staff's personal accommodations.

"I don't honestly know what to do," the anxious bureau commissioner, William Hawkins, said last night.

URGENT NEED

"I have a lease to sign to secure the staff's accommodations down there—space is almost impossible to get—but I can't send it until some money comes in."

Mr. Hawkins has stressed the urgent need for funds to underwrite the booth operations and he pointed out that some is needed immediately.

SHORT-SIGHTED

Other tourist promotion experts attacked the "short-sighted lethargy" being encountered in business and municipal circles alike.

"Surely," said one, "they must know that the biggest tourist year of them all is here. Without funds for the proper operation of our booth in Seattle, the Island is going to lose a fortune."

FUSHED BUDGETS

Other tourist bureaus within a day's travel from Seattle aren't working under the same handicaps. Most have pushed their budgets up as much as 200 per cent over last year.

"Somebody has got to make a move soon," Mr. Hawkins said. "Our Seattle booth can be the key to a regular flood of tourists to the Island this summer, but we must have the money now. Otherwise our entire program is in jeopardy."

Mac Faces Wall Of Boos, Jeers

OXFORD, England (Reuters)—Hundreds of Oxford University students booed and jeered Prime Minister Macmillan Friday night outside a hall where he was due to address university Conservatives.

Elsewhere, a Conservative backbencher made a speech interpreted widely as a call for Macmillan's resignation.

The backbencher, Sir Harry Legge-Bourke, said that for men of the 67-year-old Macmillan's generation "the time is coming for you now to hand over the responsibilities to men whose fortune is not to have had to bear so many grievous years' burdens you have borne."

FORCE PATH

When Macmillan arrived at the Oxford meeting to make a speech justifying Western nuclear policy, he had to force a path through a cat-calling crowd of several hundred nuclear disarmament advocates who had been unable to gain admittance and were barring his way.

MAC MUST GO?

London Daily Telegraph, a Conservative newspaper, carried a story on the Legge-Bourke speech reporting "this is the first time the 'Mac must go' whispering campaign, rife for some months among a section of Conservative MPs, has been publicly amplified to 'loud and clear' strength."

British Battle Sabotage

LONDON (UPI)—The Admiralty yesterday reported the second case of apparent sabotage aboard a Royal Navy ship in the last three days.

TWO ARRESTED

Officials said two men were arrested at Portsmouth, where an attempt was made to flood key compartments of the 2,000-ton destroyer HMS Carron. The officials said they found smashed gauges and damaged wiring in the destroyer's operations room. The damage was considered minor, they said.

CARRIER HIT

Earlier this week, the Admiralty reported that detectives were investigating the apparently deliberate cutting of wires on board Britain's largest aircraft carrier, HMS Eagle, now undergoing repairs at Devonport.

Convict Spoils Record

MERIDIAN, Miss. (UPI)—A convict given a 10-day leave because of his "excellent record" was arrested yesterday at a bank in Lake, Miss., which authorities said he planned to rob.

Robert Westbrook, 39, jailed for life in 1954 for bank robbery, was arrested after FBI agents received a tipoff he was coming.

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dr. Jerome A. Stroom died Friday night—almost 128 hours after a doctor had pronounced him dead. The dentist had survived twice this week after his heart and breathing had stopped.

Dr. Stroom, 37, had been listed in critical condition since entering hospital Sunday. He never regained consciousness.

A doctor at the family home Sunday night carefully checked respiration, heartbeat and pulse, according to relatives, and pronounced Dr. Stroom dead.

At a funeral chapel 75 minutes later, a mortuary attendant glanced at a stretcher in the preparation room and shouted: "My God, he's breathing!"

Must Guilt Be Proven? Folklore, Says Lawyer

OTTAWA (CP)—The principle that a man is innocent until proven guilty was described as "folklore" yesterday by Toronto lawyer John Honsberger.

He said preliminary study has turned up 40 to 50 Ontario statutes that call for "reverse onus" in which a man charged with an offence is required to prove his innocence.

Mr. Honsberger said there are another 40 or 50 statutes that "put the lie" to the theory that a man's home is his castle.

Those acts allow a variety of inspectors and officials to enter a private home to search for something or other.

Mr. Honsberger was reporting to a panel at the annual meeting of the Ontario Bar Association. He is chairman of the association's civil liberties section.

The reverse-onus feature of some acts may be justified, he said. But it appeared that it was creeping into many statutes as legislative draftsmen found it "an easy thing to do."
